BERNARD R. GOGGINS DECLINES TO ACCEPT CHAIRMANSHIP OF STATE R. R. COMMISSION

DECISION REACHES MADISON AT NOON

"TIED UP" IN "GRAND RAPIDS," IS REASON ASSIGNED

NO APPOINTMENT VERY SOON

Governor Will Confer Onto Next Prospective Appointee First—Roemer Heads List

GRAND RAPIDS, Wis., Aug. 1.— (Special.)—Bernard Goggins refuses to take John Barnes' place on the railway commission. He says he has other plans.

MADISON, Aug. 1.—(Special.)—
"I have decided to decline the appointment as railroad commissioner to succeed John Barnes," said Bernard R. Goggins this noon to The Tribune's Madison correspondent over the long distance telephone. "I have just notified the governor it is impossible to accept. I fully appreciate the honor offered and thank the press for its universal commendation. I am so tied up in a business and professional way it is impossible for me to break loose. Then, too, I have been located in Grand Rapids twenty-three years and have a home and young family here, and naturally Mrs. Goggins would feel some reluctance in leaving here. Her feeling in the matter coincides with my business necessities."

Gov. Davidson is not in the city today, and the message was received by his private secretary, Senator Munson. Another offer of appointment will not be made for several days, and the man who will get it will be sounded before he is offered the place.

OFFICER YEHLA KILLS MAD DOG

A valuable hound belonging to Fred West, 1713 Prospect street, was shot and killed by Officer Alois Yehla this morning.

A few weeks ago another dog belonging to Mr. West went mad and bit the hound. The other dog was shot and since then Mr. West has been keeping a close watch on the hound. This morning it showed symptoms of going mad, running around the house snarling and snapping, and at last took refuge under the front porch of the house. Officer Yehla was notified and hastened to the scene of the excitement and slew the canine.

KOREAN SAYS JAPS PLAN ATTACK ON AMERICA E'ERLONG

NEPHEW OF DEPOSED EMPER-OR ENROUTE TO ROOSEVELT

EDICT CALLS FOR HIS DEATH

Wants Police Protection and Will Warn President That Philippines and British India Are in Danger

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Prince Ty-jong Onji, a nephew of the deposed emperor of Korea, who arrived here today, says he is marked for assassination and that nothing can save him.

"The edict to slay me has gone forth," he said. "I am virtually dead now. It is the duty of the police to arrest the first Japanese found near me. I am here to see President Roosevelt to get him to save Korea from Japan. The mikado will try to seize the Philippines first and will then try to destroy the English power in the far Indies."

Japs Slay Forty Koreans.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 1.—
Forty Koreans were killed or wounded in a fight with Japanese today, according to a dispatch received from United States Consul General Sam-mons, at Seoul. The hostilities grew out of a Korean being disarmed by Japanese. Casualties among the Japs were slight.

BURLESQUE CIRCUS PARADE AT 11 A. M.

At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning will occur the street parade of the society burlesque circus of the La Crosse baseball association, which will be given tomorrow and Friday afternoons and evenings at League Park.
Some unique features will make the parade an event of particular interest.

CY YOUNG SIGNED BY THE "CHAMPS"

President Elliott of the local association received word from Manager Hawley this morning that in today's game with Madison "C" Young would be in the box for La Crosse for a trial. Young has been playing with Milwaukee in the Lake Shore league and is said to be able to deliver the goods. No definite information was obtained as to whether "C" Young is being tried, but it is stated by some of the fans that he is the former University of Wisconsin star, who pitched a no run no hit game while on the university team two years ago.

RAMESES WAS FRAUD

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Egyptologists claim they have discovered that Rameses II. was a fraud and that he is not entitled to the appellation of "great" which historians have given him. Recent explorations, it is stated, have developed the fact that many temples and monuments bearing his name and, therefore, supposedly his work, existed a thousand years before him. The explorers believe the king was vain and caused his name to be cut everywhere.

CATHOLIC KNIGHTS MAY BUY NORMAL

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 1.—Milwaukee normal school, site and buildings, have been offered to the Milwaukee school board and to the Knights of Columbus of $55,000. The Knights of Columbus are considering the proposition at the present time, intending to make use of the building for a Catholic Y. M. C. A.

CLOTHED CRIME IN ROBES OF PRIEST

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Four indictments, charging attempted robbery and extortion, have been returned against Father Levot Martoogesian, the Armenian priest, who laid aside his priestly robes to blackmail.
The plots of the priest led to one murder and his arrest.
District Attorney Jerome has taken a personal hand in the case and it.

RATE COMMISSION CUTS DOWN RATE ON COAL SHIPMENT

SUPERIOR BOARD WINS POINT—SPUR LINES MUST BE FAIR

EXPRESS RATE RULING SOON

Several Consignees to Single Package Reasonable, but General Finding Is Promised

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 1.—The rate commission handed down a decision ordering 40 cents reduction per ton on the coal rate between Ashland, Superior and Eau Claire and pro rata on intervening points on the Omaha road today. The decision is result of a complaint filed by Senator J. H.
Noble of Eau Claire and the Superior Board of Trade. The new rates from Superior to Eau Claire are fixed today are hard coal, $1.40; soft, $1.00.

On complaint of Harvey Clark, of Janesville, against the C. M. & St. P.
the commission orders that lines which have spur tracks, must switch the cars of another line that has none for a reasonable compensation.

The commission also orders improved service on the Greenwood branch of the Wisconsin Central and suggests that a change in train schedules be made on the Portage division of that line.

In regard to the complaint lodged against the express companies, the commission held the rule prohibiting consignments to several persons in the same package was a reasonable rule. The commission did not pass the rate charged, but stated it would rule on the general express charges soon.

The commission ordered the Wisconsin Central to give better service on the Portage-Stevens Point branch within ten days. If it is not done in that time the commission will order a schedule of its own put in.

LA CROSSE SENDS APPEAL FOR MEN

Is there a famine of carpenters in La Crosse?

Contractors, almost unable to undertake successfully the large amount of building in La Crosse this summer, are crying for more men. So strong has become the drain upon the ranks of skilled laborers in the city, that a call has been sent to Milwaukee, Wis., for ten carpenters.

William Griebel, secretary of the Federated Trades of Milwaukee has received a call from a local contractor for men. He is the first to advertise for help.

In other lines of building work
the same condition prevails.
Seldom is La Crosse seen so heavy a building streak. With buildings going up on almost every street, and many of the structures of more than pretentious size, the facilities of the local builders have been taxed to the utmost. Foreign contractors have taken work in La Crosse, but enough have remained to employ any in the city.

NEW PUZZLER IN THE MAGILL CASE

CLINTON, Ill., Aug. 1.—More mystery than ever was thrown about the death of Mrs. "Pet" Magill today by the official report of the chemists that while there was abundant evidence of arsenic and definite traces of chloroform in the lung tissue, no adequate pathological cause for the death of the woman had been discovered. The theory of arsenical poisoning was eliminated by the fact that the embalming fluid used contained that poison. The physicians are making a final test, which will not be completed for some time.

Today the theory that the woman was strangled was advanced.
Magill's story, as well as the state's theory, is destroyed by the chemists' report. Magill swore that he found her with her head in a bowl of chloroform. The physicians' report is that she did not die by inhaling this poison.

Attorney Lemon, for the defense, let the jury see one of "Pet's" suicide letters, but astutely withdrew it.
He refused to produce Margaret Magill, the missing daughter.

Edward Brown, a negro, has been arrested in Winona when he was about to take a Milwaukee train for La Crosse. He is charged with taking $2.50 from the money drawer of a restaurant.

H. C. FRICK HURRIES HOME TO HEAD STANDARD OIL CO.

Henry C. Frick

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Henry C.
Frick is hurrying from Europe a month ahead of time and Wall street believes he will succeed Henry

H. Rogers as head of the Standard Oil company.

Rogers friends still insist his illness is not serious and that he will be back to business Saturday.

Henry Clay Frick, the Pittsburg steel magnate and one of the great powers in the huge Pennsylvania railroad interests, was born at W.
Overton, Penn., on December 19th, 1849. He began life as a clerk for his grandfather in the distillery trade but later he entered the coke business where he first showed his marvelous power of management and business determination. Mr. Frick married Miss Adelaide Howard in 1877 at Pittsburg. Since 1897 he has been the active head of the H.
C. Frick Coke company, which produces more coke than any other single corporation in the world. It was in 1892 that Mr. Frick gained international prominence in connection with his fight against labor during the famous Homestead strike. He was wounded and nearly blown up with a dynamite bomb. Since that time Mr. Frick has been more secluded. He is noted for charitable works and has given big sums to worthy objects.

WED, DESERTED, DIVORCED AT 18

UNHAPPY STORY OF ELIZABETH SCHOENHOFEN

DIVORCE IS GRANTED TODAY

Girl, too Young to Apply for Separation Has Action Started by Mrs. Maggie Smith

Deserted for a year, after her marriage the second day in January, when the world appeared its brightest, Jennie Elizabeth Schoenhofen, though still in her teens, was granted a divorce from Fred E. Schoenhofen by Judge Fruit yesterday afternoon.

To secure the legal separation, the appointment of a guardian ad litem was necessary by Judge Fruit, who issued the decree. Mrs. Maggie Smith was appointed to bring the action for the wife, not old enough to do so herself, but of sufficient years to be married.

The usual ground for action, in early and hasty marriages, desertion was charged against Schoenhofen. A general denial of the complaint was entered by the defendant, but Judge Fruit granted the separation.

The couple was married on Jan. 2, 1906, when the bride was eighteen years of age. The world appeared happy to them at the time, and it was decided to begin married life early in the year. Schoenhofen soon tired of marital happiness, or unhappiness, as he probably termed it, and left his girl bride.

ARM! STRIKE TO KILL SAYS PABRIELLA

CHISHOLM, Minn., Aug. 1.— Petriella, the agitator, before two thousand miners today declared they should arm themselves in the next 24 hours and strike to kill if they cannot secure their rights through justice. Sheriff Bates with one hundred armed deputies, left Duluth for Hibbing. One hundred new deputies have been sworn in.
The Fayal mine there opens with nearly a full crew; the Adams, Spuse, Rust, Glen Clark and Chisholm mines will resume with partial crews.

Mine Owners Beg For Soldiers.

DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 1.—Gov.
Johnson has again been asked to send troops into the iron mining district.
Today is declared to be a critical day in the strike on the Mesaba ranges.
The dock laborers returned to work this morning on the old terms. The governor is investigating through three representatives.

TROOPS KILL THIRTY IN NEW LABOR WAR

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—In quelling riots troops at Lodz today opened fire, killing and wounding thirty.

The riots were the result of an attempt to inaugurate a general labor war here. Additional troops are being rushed here. Business is at a standstill, and the principal leaders of the socialists are arrested. The leaders' plan is to secure control of Lodz. The street cars have been burned.

The coming advance in freight rates on lumber from the Pacific coast is justified by James J. Hill, who says that on present rates the roads lose money on a car hauled empty to the coast and hauled back full of lumber.

FRENCH WAR SHIPS ON MOROCCO COAST

RULER MUST PROTECT FOR-EIGNERS ON POWER OF DEATH

CHILDREN TORTURE VICTIMS

Tangier Dispatch Says They Amused Themselves Gouging Out Eyes of Foreigners

TANGIER, Aug. 1.—The French cruiser Galilee arrived at Casablanca today. The ship's commander, has ordered the pasha to protect Europeans on the penalty of his own head.

Terrible Tortures.

Two of Tuesday's massacre victims were burned alive, and the remainder were horribly tortured.
The helpless victims were tortured by children, who were allowed to gouge their eyes out; splinters were also driven under their finger and toe nails. The natives were encouraged by troops who stood by and watched the torture. Foreigners are in a state of terror many boarding foreign steamships in the harbor.

More Warships Sail.

TOULON, France, Aug. 1.—The cruisers Conde and Duchayla have been ordered to sail this afternoon for Morocco to assist in putting down the rebellious tribesmen who are seeking the lives of foreigners and threaten a holy war.

DESIRABLE PLACE; DESIRABLE PLAN!

"A desirable factory and La Crosse a desirable place for it."

This is the opinion held by A. A.
Bentley, the new secretary of the La Crosse Board of Trade, and Ray S. Reid, the retiring secretary, who inspected the plant of the Rochester Camera company, at Rochester, Minn., yesterday.

Robert Conley, president of the company, will make a trip to La Crosse on Monday to view the local factory sites, and may give a definite proposal on moving to the city.

No proposition of any kind was negotiated between the representatives of the Board of Trade and the camera company officials yesterday.
The trip was purely one of inspection, to view the plant and ascertain the conditions and the number of people employed.

"The plant is a desirable one for La Crosse," said Secretary Bentley today. "The factory is a busy one, with about 10,000 feet of floor space, with men crowded in the various rooms. This is the condition,
I believe, which prompts the company to move."

"I expect Mr. Conley will make a proposition after his visit and inspection of La Crosse on Monday.
We can accommodate the firm easily."

JACK DOWNEY TO BECOME MERCHANT

James Downey, a former La Crosse boy, who has been visiting here for the last few days, left for New York, where he will buy a bill of dry goods.
Mr. Downey will leave some time later for Seattle, where he will open a large dry goods store.

The best any man can do who tries to drown his troubles in drink is to float them.

SUICIDE AND GUILTY LOVE SECRET OF MATTHEWS CASE

JEWISH RABBI AND FISH DEALER ARE TAKEN INTO COURT

CHARGED WITH VIOLATION OF FISH LAWS

BOTH ENTER PLEAS TODAY

Rabbi of Jewish Congregation and Dealer Will Fight Charge of False Weight to Finish

Charged with violating the state laws, relative to the shipment of fish, and also catching fish under weight, M. Ehrlich, a fish buyer, 1106 Pine street, and Meyer Reim-an, rabbi of the Jewish congregation, 702 North Eleventh street were arrested today on complaint of Deputy Game Warden George L. Kingsley.

Only one charge, that of unlawfully shipping fish, was preferred against Rabbi Reiman. When arrigned before Judge Brindley, each, through his attorney, J. E. Higbee, entered a plea of not guilty. The cases were continued until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The first charge against Ehrlich and also Reiman, is that they delivered a package of fish to the United States Express company yesterday consigned to points outside the state, and did not properly label the contents. The law provides that the name of the consignee and consignor, well marked on the package, with a description of the fish, and the weight. The complaint charges a false weight was registered.

The second charge against Ehrlich is that he had in his possession, a pike under the weight of one pound.
The law specifically prohibits the shipment of pike, or other game fish, under a pound in weight, either dressed or undressed.

In the package consigned to outside points, were pike, bass, bull-heads and pickerel.

Ehrlich makes a business of buying fish and shipping them. Provided the law is complied with, there is no objection to the vociferous.

The defendants promise to fight the case to a finish.

DOVE FLUTTERS DURING WEDDING

During the wedding of John J. Hunt and Miss Ada Webb at Winona yesterday, a white dove, which had been let into the courtroom, liberated from the chimney place by the clerk of court.
Fluttered over the heads of the participants. This is taken as an evidence of good luck. The wedding was performed by Judge Buck and Gustav Beck and Miss Carrie Webb, both of La Crosse, attended the couple.

TWO MORE ENGINE EXPLOSIONS FATAL

URBANA, O., Aug. 1.—Lou Chamberlain, P. F. Weisner and Charles Stuart, trainmen, were killed early this morning by the blowing up of a boiler on a Pennsylvania engine. Low water was the cause. The engine, tender and two cars were demolished.

Boiler Explodes; Three Die.

BRECKENRIDGE, Mo., Aug. 1.—
The boiler on a locomotive of a Burlington freight blew up last night, killing G. E. Mendenhall, brakeman;
H. P. Brewer, fireman, and a student fireman. Two others were seriously injured.

DECREASE IN THE CANINE POPULATION

The dog census taken by the police this year shows a decrease of 125 dogs in the city of La Crosse.

There are 1,004 dogs on the south side and 354 on the north side, making a total of 1,358.

Seventy-five dogs were shot this year by the police, while 150 were killed last year.

SWIMMER DIES IN SWELL CLUB TANK

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—Edmund R. Watson, president of the Southern National bank of this city, was killed early this morning in the swimming tank of the swell Columbia club. He mounted the diving board, but slipped and his head struck the concrete tank, killing him instantly.

RUMBAUGH LOVED HER, SHE LOVED COEY

LATTER NOT A "MARRYING MAN" ACCORDING TO LETTERS

NURSE RELEASED ON VERDICT

One Coroner's Jury Finds Both Colorado Springs Deaths Were Self Inflicted

COLORADO SPRINGS, Aug. 1.—
Laura Matthews suicided. Amos R. Rumbaugh suicided. That was the verdict, differing only in the time, the place and the person, of a coroner's jury that exploded the murder mystery that has agitated this community for days. All suspicion of foul play is gone. Miss Green being promptly released from surveillance.

The story is simple enough, touching and yet sordid. Laura Matthews and Charles A. Coey, the Chicago clubman and autoist, were intimate. They loved each other.
But Miss Matthews loved splendor that Coey, well-to-do as he was, could not afford, and gaily that he did not approve. Dr. Harold Thomas, a Chicago dentist, and known in a celebrated divorce case, loved the girl in a "swifter" way, and had her favor to some extent. It was from him, not from Rumbaugh, who seems to have been more conventional in his attentions, that Coey sought to save Miss Matthews.

Amos R. Rumbaugh, the suicide, loved the girl, too, and he had the money. Coey importuned the girl to "be good" and to return to him, not mentioning marriage.
Rumbaugh wanted her to marry him and tour the world. She promised Rumbaugh that she would marry him Aug. 1, unless she suicided prior to that date. She killed herself.
Warned by Miss Matthews' constant threats of suicide, and knowing the pact with Rumbaugh, the nurse,

LITTLETON TO FIGHT FOR LIFE OF THAW

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Martin W.
Littleton, former borough president of Brooklyn, has been selected as chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw. It is understood Littleton's retaining fee is $25,000, and that he accepted on condition that he is to have his own way in conducting the trial.

The story that Evelyn Nesbit Thaw pines for the stage is vigorously denied by the girl and the entire Thaw family.

ALL "CHINKS" LIARS

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 1.—After 690 veniemen had been called a jury of twelve men has been found who will hear the evidence of Dr. G. S. Chan, a Chinaman, charged with practicing medicine without a license. Nearly all of the 678 veniemen who did not qualify declared they would not believe a Chinaman under oath.

TEN YEARS IN BED

"For ten years I was confined to my bed with disease of my kidneys," writes R. A. Gray, J. P., of Oakville, Ind. "It was so severe that I could not move part of the time. I consulted the very best medical skill available, but could get no relief until Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended to me. It has been a Godsend to me." O. T. Erhart.

THE DOPE BOX

The Champs and Senators are battling in a postponed game today. No games are scheduled about the circuit.

La Crosse finally won a game from the rejuvenated Senators yesterday.

"Duke" Flynn seems to have cast his early season "hoodoo" to the winds, and is the winning twirler of the team now. He won against the bunch that beat "Bumpus" Jones.

Madison sporting writers so dope their accounts of the game that it appears that the Champs never were in the game of baseball. It wasn't long ago that La Crosse took three games from the Senators, and then secured another contest by forfeit from the sleepy Senators.

Every one on the circuit admits that the Madison team has played the fastest kind of baseball. What would the team do without a first baseman, and second baseman, and pitchers playing the out field.

Fond du Lac trimmed Wausau again yesterday, administering a shoutout. Green Bay also turned around and shut out Oshkosh. Fond du Lac and Green Bay each made one run.

Freeport hasn't lost a game at home this season, without an excellent excuse being offered. An inexcusable error on the part of the Canners at home is a rarity. The football goal posts, and sun excuses have been worn out, too.

Eddie Konetchy appears to be hitting the ball in Wisconsin State league style again.

La Crosse might return home and treat Charles Comiskey, owner of the Chicago White Sox, to a fast game. Mississippi river bass probably are occupying the attention of the "Old Roman" just now, but he might be induced to view Warhop and Jones in battle array.

Bout time for Wausau to use Nagle and add another peg in the ladder of victories.

A girl can not ask for a greater compliment than to have her mother brag on her, unless it is to have her father brag on her.

NELSON BEATEN BY JIMMY BRITT

"BATTLER" LOSES FIGHT IN TWENTIETH

DANE SAVED FROM KNOCKOUT

Driven to Ropes by Californian, but Sound of Gong Ends Contest—Winner Strong in Last Round

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Jimmy Britt defeated "Battling" Nelson in the last round of a twenty-round go last night, in the fiercest round of the battle. Driving the "battler" to the ropes, Britt was ready to hand out the knock out punch, but the gong saved the Dane.

The fight was first first-class bout pulled off in San Francisco since the earthquake, and a record breaking crowd was in attendance. Thousands crowded into the arena. During the rush for seats, several were knocked down, trampled upon and crushed. The police were unable to check the surging mob, anxious to see the pride of California lightweights go against the best in the Mississippi valley.

The first three rounds were Britt's, but Nelson came back strong, and after dividing the third, took teh honors in the fourth, fifth and sixth. In the seventh, eighth and ninth, Britt turned the tables, and had a large margin over the "Dane." In the seventh round, "Joe" Gans shouted "Good boy, Jimmy."

The eleventh, twelfth and thirteenth were Britt's rounds again, although Nelson attempted close fighting, and Britt contented himself with long distance punching. In the fourteenth Britt came to the fore again.

The first signs of weakening were shown by Nelson in the seventeenth. In the two previous rounds, Nelson tried to force the fighting, but Britt kept away, contented, with his long distance hammering. In the nineteenth Jimmy landed a punch, sufficient to put out an ordinary fighter, but Nelson took it all. The round was Britt's by a large margin.

Round twenty—They shook hands and fought hard. Nelson drove a wicked right smash to the jaw. They mixed it furiously, Britt having the better of it. Britt drove Nelson to the ropes. Nelson tottered about the ring helplessly. Britt went at his man like a maniac, almost sending Nelson through the ropes with a right flush to the jaw. The gong saved Nelson from a certain knockout. Nelson went to his corner vomiting.

Britt was given the decision.

KONETCHY IS HITTING Appears to Have Regained His Batting Eye

"Eddie" Konetchy appears to have regained that long lost batting eye by the manner in which he has been lacing out the ball during the last few games with the Cardinals. Yesterday he made two hits out of five times up in the first game, and one in the second when up four times. Out of twenty-one chances in the two games he made one error. One of the hits was an extra bagger, and made off "Iron Man" McGinnity at that. Remember how Konetchy slammed a three baser off "Joe" during that New York series.

Here's a little dope picked up from around the National league circuit, relative to Konetchy:

The St. Louis team is well fortified with first basemen. In addition to Konetchy, the regular man, Burnett, Barry, Hostette, and Lush have played on the initial sack.

It is possible that the name of Konetchy, the Greek first baseman of the Cardinals, will be whittled down to "Koney," as was Hoelsketter's name to "Holly" and "Hostetter."

OLDEST BANK IN THE WORLD

(T. P.'s London Weekly)

There was a kind of public record office attached to the palace and temple at Nineveh, in which it was customary to deposit important legal and other documents, such as contracts and agreements for the purchase and sale of property, marriage settlements, wills, etc. Among these there were discovered official transactions as to the history and transactions of the eminent banking house of Egidu at Nineveh. Assyrian chronology proves that these refer to a date about 2,300 years before the Christian era, when Abraham dwelt at Ur of the Chaldees, as is stated in Genesis. We may, reputation of being the oldest bank in the world, at least, of which we have any record, or are likely to have. The accounts are very voluminous, and cover the transactions of five generations of the house from father to son. The firm grew rapidly in importance during this period, during which they attained great wealth; for they succeeded in securing from the king the appointment of collectors of taxes, a position which in the east always leads to fortune. They afterward framed the revenue for several of the Assyrian provinces, with very great gain to the firm.

Most of us feel that we could live without a hitch when t he bridegroom fails to appear.

HILLEGAS, FIRST TREASURER.

(New York Herald)

A great many people have wondered why the picture of Michael Hillegas, first treasurer of the United States, appears on the new yellow-backed $10 bills after the many decades during which no recognition of the services of that faithful official was forthcoming. It seems that the belated testimonial to the man whose services to his country were admittedly worthy, is due to a descendant, the Rev. Michael Lee Minich, a Lutheran minister, and to Former Secretary of the Treasury Shaw and the late John Hay. Mr. Hay and Mr. Shaw both interested themselves in the matter of claims that either Robert Morris or Samuel Meredith, and not Hillegas, was the first treasurer, and from the government archives obtained proof of the correctness of the contention of Rev. Mr. Minich and others who defended the cause of Hillegas.

Mr. Hillegas was a sugar refiner, iron manufacturer, and merchant in Philadelphia before the revolutionary war. He placed his funds and his credit at the disposal of George Washington when that patriot needed assistance, and it was but natural that he should have been given the post of treasurer when the infant republic came into being. Mr. Hillegas' dad was historical research and he was very fond of music.

BOOSTER GAIN NO. 1.

The efficacy of the booster campaign, as being prosecuted in La Crosse, is already demonstrated. The Rochester Camera company, an institution employing eighty people, has furnished the demonstration.

Months ago Judge Reid, as secretary of the Board of Trade, wrote this company relative to the possibility of its locating in La Crosse. The project did not then seem to interest the Rochester firm, and the affair was dropped.

Yesterday the manager of the camera company called Judge Reid on the long distance telephone, asking him in a general way about the desirability of locating in this city, and Messrs. Reid and Bentley went at once to Rochester to look into the proposition.

Nothing may come of this incident. There is a possibility that the factory is not desirable, but that is remote. There is a possibility that it may make demands that it will be impossible for La Crosse to meet as a business proposition, and, again LA CROSSE MAY GET THE FACTORY.

But one thing is certain, and that is that if in the preliminary steps of the Booster campaign a great factory is encouraged by it to seek location here, that too is but preliminary to scores of inquiries out of which will come to this city some substantial institutions that will contribute permanently to the welfare of the community. So just "Keep your eye on La Crosse!"

MR. BARNES BEGS THE QUESTION

In the case of men like John Barnes there can be no question of intentional public wrong. There is always a possibility, however, of an unconscious yielding to undue influence. For some reason—say in order to be sure of safety in court in case of legal contest—the state railroad commission gave the railroad the benefit of the doubt wherever doubt existed as to the fairness of a 2-cent rate, thus leaving upon the people the burden of proving that a 2-cent rate is fair and profitable. That the commission should have given the public the benefit of some of the doubts, and should have placed the burden of proving its contentions upon the railroad, is the proposition upon which the legislature based its action in going over the heads of the commission in the decrease of the rate from 2½ cents to 2 cents. That the legislature was right is conceded by some of the railroads, at least one of which announced publicly that it would institute a 2-cent rate before the legislative step was taken. It is supported by the fact that the railroad commissions of at least three other states, after full investigation, fixed the rate in their respective jurisdictions at 2 cents. It is conceded by the Wisconsin commission itself in the statement that had the legislature kept hands off, the commission would have soon reduced the rate to 2 cents.

PEOPLE OF NOTE

Empress of Germany

The Empress Augusta Victoria of Germany, consort of the many-sided and energetic Kaiser, was born a princess of the ducal house of Schleswig-Holstein, was in decidedly straitened circumstances and had a hard time keeping up the sort of menage suitable for his position. It was in 1873 that the Emperor, then only the Grandson of the Emperor of Germany, met his future bride and the empress of today. They were betrothed on June 2nd, 1880, and married on February 27th, 1881; both of them being 22 years of age. Since then the empress has gained the earnest affection of all her subjects and is regarded as a model wife and mother.

In the face of these facts there was but one sensible thing for the commission to have done. It should have endorsed the action of the legislature as equitable and timely.

But it doesn't matter, for there is every reason to believe that Mr. Barnes' place on the commission has been filled by a man than whom the state has none better qualified for the duties imposed by the important office he will occupy. Mr. Barnes will find he has selected a poor stepping stone to the governorship, if that is the secret.

It is asserted that the divorced wife of Count Boni contemplates marrying another foreign spendthrift. That's the stuff to disgust the American press with the futile efforts to save our title-coveting rich from the designing dead-brokers of an effete titled aristocracy.

The Evanston, Ill., census official has discovered that a superabundance of women is conducive to race suicide. And yet women cut considerable figure in the propagation of the species.

A glance at the baseball record of the past fortnight is calculated to dissipate any lingering suspicion that the appearance of Comisky in this city indicates that the White Sox manager has designs on any of the Champs.

It cost the Northwestern Life $13,000 to head off insurance laws that wouldn't be headed off. The efficiency of the lobby is so weakened by modern law as to render the lobbyist a non-producing luxury.

Again the official conspiracy to hang Caleb Powers is insolently flaunting its unconscionable tactics in the face of a too temperate public.

The annual hot-weather suicide epidemic is on. Suicide is apt to prove a disappointing way of attempting to evade hot weather.

For newspapers, failing to get the news when it is news is bad; trying to avoid the consequences is worse. But what's the use?

OF HUMAN INTEREST

How much in evidence now are the children of the younger generation. If there were any such things as youngsters who were "seen and not heard" and of a meek and retiring disposition it must have been in a day far removed from the present one.

Now this isn't insinuating for a minute that all children are likebehave. Many little ones don't know any different way than to interrupt their parents every other word when they are in conversation or to bother visitors to the point of distraction, for they have never had it impressed upon their youthful minds that such things are not proper.

The "smarmies" which we encounter every once in a while on the street, in street cars and other public places reach that stage through the neglect in early years of those in charge and the children are not so much to blame as their elders.

Once in a while the best trained youngsters will fall short of model behavior; there is enough "original sin" in all of us to know that perfection isn't looked for in children more than in older folks. But there is a noticeable difference between children that have been taught well and children that once in a while lapse from good manners.

Some people are fairly strict with their children in some ways that allow them to become perfect nuisances when company is present. They may very naturally hate to make a scene before people, but you know I think it's almost better than some noted woman I read of once who always kept her word to the letter with her children.

One day in the presence of a visitor for a misdemeanor was committed and she said to her little girl of eight: "I shall punish you for that when this lady goes home." Well the lady said until long after the little girl's bedtime and the mother found she had been asleep for an hour.

In spite of this fact she went to her room and taking her out of bed gave her her spanking, then put her back in with the words: "You know mother always means exactly what she says."

Now this seems to me pretty severe but the lady was a noted authority on child training and tells the story herself.

I was at a home not long ago where the only child (a most favored one as far as finances go) was one of great beauty and interest, aged four. He kept up a running fire of small talk every minute, he never "let up" once.

His playthings were scattered all over the living room; he finally got two rulers and made such a terrific din that we all had to shout our conversation at each other. His mother was making the most effort to make herself heard.

She asked him if he "would" go into the dining room and tell the maid something. No, he "wouldn't" he said. "Alright," said his mother, "you don't have to, but I'd like to have you." He paid no attention and finally his mamma said it was bed-time, at which arose a howl so loud and prolonged that we gave up all attempts at everything, but just sat and stared at each other.

Thus was a visit of old time friends that hadn't seen each other for some years marred and made unpleasant, and all this in a home of wealth and refinement, where any one would naturally think there would be some discipline.

In five or six years from now unless things take a turn right soon, that mother will wonder why she has such a "time" with her boy.

When children annoy older people who are guests and especially those who are not accustomed to them, it puts them in a very unpleasant position, and I am always constrained to think of the old gentleman who, when the hosts little boy had plagued the life nearly out of him all morning, turned to the mother and said: "Madam there is one thing about your little boy that delights me exceedingly." "Oh, yes, and what is that?" asked the fond mamma. "That he isn't twits," sedately replied the old gentleman. And we can agree with him once in a while anyway.

5732 Over Blouse with Guimpe,

OVER BLOUSE WITH GUIMPE.

Bordered materials are so beautiful just now and so varied that every design which can be utilized for them is doubly welcome. Illustrated is a very novel and attractive overwaist that in this instance is made of bordered marquisette and worn over a lingerie guimpe. It is made very simply and both the inner edges and the edges of the sleeves are straight so that it suits the bordered stuffs peculiarly well. Trimming, however, always can be substituted for the borders and the blouse is by no means to be limited in its usefulness. Such light weight wools as marquisette and voile, such pretty silks as pongee, crepe de Chine, messaline and all others of light weight and also a whole host of summer fabrics that are in demand for immediate wear would be appropriate, the trimming being applique banding, embroidery or braiding as liked. The guimpe is trimmed on indicated lines to give a distinctly novel as well as attractive effect and with propriety can be made from lawn, batiste, embroidered muslin, chiffon or almost any other material of equally light weight.

The guimpe is made simply with front and back portions and with sleeves that are shirred to form double puffs or frills. The over blouse is made in two portions with the big sleeves in Mandarin style. Each straight portion is tucked over the shoulders and is gathered at the waist line, so giving soft and becoming folds. Both guimpe and over blouse are closed invisibly at the back.

The quantity of material required for the medium size is 2½ yards either 21 or 27 or 1¼ yards 44 inches wide for the over blouse with 5½ yards of banding, 2 yards 36 inches wide with 7 yards of insertion for the guimpe.

The pattern 5732 is cut in sizes for a 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40 inch bust measure and will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper on receipt of ten cents. (If in haste send an additional two-cent stamp for letter postage which insures more prompt delivery.)

CHAPTER IX.

These moments of respite from the dancing were peaceful. Diana thought, as Jim drew a chair forward and seated himself beside her. She was strangely unsettled tonight. Her head ached slightly, it was true, but she was conscious that ever since Lady Elizabeth's remark concerning Jim and Sadie Jones, a curious irritation had possessed her. She didn't stop to reason it out, but plunged at once into the heart of the matter.

"I congratulate you, Jim."

"On what?"

"Your brilliant prospects."

"We've never met—shouldn't know them if I saw them."

So Diana knew too of the scheme to secure a fortune for the house of Kerhill. Jim was curious to learn her point of view. There was a new touch of bitterness in Diana's voice that puzzled him.

"Don't let them beat you down in the price, Jim. If you sell your sweet young life, let it be at a good round figure, for our sakes." The scornful mirth of her last words was unmistakable.

"I shall always be a joker to you, Diana."

"Well, if our whole social fabric isn't a joke," Di interrupted, "pray, what is it?"

"I don't belong to the social fabric. I'm an outsider."

Again she feverishly interrupted.

"Oh, you can't escape. You are up on the block. Look our best, and try to bring a fancy price. We have always sold our women, and now we have taken to selling our men."

For a moment he wondered if she too, approved of the fortune hunt.

"Are you in the Chichester Jones conspiracy, too?" he asked.

"Certainly, the answer came, but with it a look that plainly contradicted the words. She was in wild spirits, he could see; he let her run on. "You are a monster of selfish obstinacy, Jim. Your inability to grasp your own best interests and ours—is a proof of a feeble intellect—and a wicked heart."

Gaily he entered into her mood. "Well, Diana," he said, "I'm an amiable brute. If you insist upon it, perhaps—"

"Good," she cut in quickly as she jumped on the seat and clung to an overhanging bough. "Let me be the auctioneer; I'll get you a good price." Blithely assuming the voice and manner of a professional auctioneer, she began: "Step up, ladies—step up, ladies. Please examine this first-class specimen of the British aristocracy. He is kind and gentle, sound in mind and limb; will travel well in double harness—has blue ribbons and medals, and a pedigree longer than you pursue. He's for sale; how much am I bid?"

Jim, who laughingly followed her words, interrupted in mock seriousness: "One moment before you knock me down. Have you considered the existence of the American people? These Yankees are driving the English girls out of the home market. I believe in protection for the home product by an ad valorem tax on the raw material and exclusion for the finished product—in the shape of widows. I'm a patriot. God bless our English commerce—homes, I mean."

Jim's burst of nonsense was finished by a "Hear, hear" from Diana. Then their laughter rang out merrily. Diana clung to the swaying branch; Jim, below her, like Henry, noticed the ethereal quality of her beauty that night. She put out her hands to him.

"Please," she said, and he helped her down. Their light-heartedness seemed to desert them. Mechanically he kept her hand in his, held spellbound by her gracious charm. Diana withdrew her hand as she said: "Jim, you're a boy and you'll never grow up." Then, because she wished him to reassure her of his distaste for the proposed marriage, she said, "Sadie Jones is the chance of a lifetime and you'll miss it."

Jim only half heard her words. He was conscious of a strange dread of remaining longer alone with her.

"How do you know I will?" he said.

All her tender faith and belief in him was in her answer: "Oh, Jim, I know you."

Did she though? Did he know himself? What was this wild new feeling of fear, of sweet, elusive pain? His words gave no sign of the tumult of his thoughts.

"Do you? Well, you couldn't do me a greater service than to make me know myself. Fire at will."

Diana, too, was conscious of a strange undercurrent to their lighter talk. She was aware of Jim's searching glances, but, like him, she gave no sign of the vague uneasiness that would not be stilled.

"Shall I, really?" she questioned.

Jim nodded.

"Remember, you've brought it on yourself." She seated herself close to the sundial, and half leaned against it. Jim was facing her.

"Well, to begin with, you will never wholly succeed in life."

"Dear me, I meant surgery, not butchery, Di."

She paid no heed to the interruption. "You are not spiritual enough to create your own world, and you are too idealistic to be happy in this frankly material world. You have temperament and sentiment; they are fatal in a practical age."

She paused; there was no denial from Jim. As she waited for him to speak, her eyes rested on the decorations glittering on his coat. "Your breast is covered with medals for personal courage, but you could never be a great general."

He almost stopped her with a reminder of the days on the North-western Hills, but a certain truth in all that she said kept him silent. His memory went back to the hours in which he had fought—even at the sacrifice of himself—to save his men. He heard her say:

"You could never sink your point of view to the demands of necessary horrors. Confronted with the alternative of suffering, or causing suffering, you would suffer." She rose, and, as though peering into the future, said, "You are marked for the sacrifice."

Her face shone as though illumined by a clairvoyant power of spiritual insight. She seemed to have forgotten the present and stared straight ahead, trying to see into the heavy mists that enveloped the coming years. Jim made an effort to relax the nervous tension of the moment.

"What a rosy, alluring picture! A failure at everything I touch, eh? Have I one redeeming virtue?"

But although the voice that spoke was light with raillery he was possessed by an uncontrollable agitation. She stood with a haunted look of such intensity on her face that he became conscious only of the infinite desire to protect her. As he came close to her she was thrilled by the vibrating sympathy that drew them together, and raised her eyes to his. The strong, tender face of Jim to which she had so often turned in her days of unspoken despair gave her the comprehension and sympathy that were denied her by another. She thought of the expression of Sadie Jones' eyes as she sang:

"Tout passe, tout lasse."

Diana knew that she had been sending her song out into the night as a message to Jim in the garden. She thought of the unacknowledged sense of comfort that Lady Elizabeth experienced when Jim came to visit them. Without him, what would the day be? She shuddered at the desolation it might mean to be without this reliant, forceful friend. As it all flashed through her mind, she said:

"You have one triumphant quality, Jim. Whether it will add to your sum of suffering or compensate for all the rest, who knows? You have one inevitable success."

She paused, but the rustling of the tree-tops prevented either of them from hearing Henry as he came from the pergola. Diana moved a step nearer to Jim—Henry did not make known his presence. Quite simply and sincerely she said:

"You will always have the love of women, Jim."

Something snapped in Jim's brain.

He stood hypnotized by a stronger force than his own will; he could not speak. Henry's voice sounded like the cracked clang of a jarring bell in a golden silence.

"That's a dangerous gift, Jim. Professional heartbreakers ought not to be allowed in other people's preserves."

Henry spoke quietly, but he was consumed by a mad, unreasoning fury. Diana simply said, "Oh, I was just trying to tease Jim about Sadie Jones."

Jim started towards the house, intending to leave Di with Henry. "Teasing—a ruthless grilling, I call it. I've been vivisectioned, Henry; it's not a pleasant experience, believe me."

But Henry, who was looking from Diana to Jim, with unmistakable meaning, said, "You stopped at an interesting—perhaps a critical—moment, Diana. I suppose I ought to beg your pardon. Where lovers are involved, the husband is an intruder, almost an impertinence."

Jim turned and retraced his steps. Diana did not move. Their eyes were fastened on Henry's face, now flaming with passion. All Diana's womanhood was battling within her; her face grew tense, her eyes like black pansies. She seemed unconscious of Jim's presence; all her being was concentrated in the challenge of her eyes as she let them strike back her answer.

"You are making a grave mistake, Henry. One that you will regret as long as you live."

She could say no more; she wished to escape. Why didn't Jim speak? She could hardly see him. An overwhelming desire to leave both men before the sinking trembling of her body should overpower the strength of her will, enabled her to reach the house.

The men were alone; both had watched Diana gain the doorway. Neither seemed capable of helping her. Jim was the first to move; he came towards Henry with a quick, resolute step. Suddenly he became conscious of a new knowledge that checked his speech. He could only stare at Henry, while the wild beating of his heart tormented him. Much had been revealed to him regarding his feeling for Diana, during the past hour. Henry was watching him furtively.

"And now, sir," he began, "I will listen to you. You have had time to think up a plausible explanation."

For Diana's and his aunt's sake he must be calm, so Jim only answered, "I would not insult you or Diana by offering one."

The quiet scorn of Jim's apparent indifference maddened Henry.

NO SPECIAL CALL FOR HARVEST HANDS

RAILROADS HAVE NOT YET RECEIVED NOTICES

MAKE NO SPECIAL RATES

Thirty Day Requirement Before the Change in Rate May Make Harvest Hand Rate Impossible

Railroads of the northwest as yet have not received definite information as to the harvest hands which will be needed this season and so far have not made any special rates. No special call for help has been made on the railroads, but with the prospects of an average crop there is every indication that the usual demand for men will be made.

Until the railroads learn as to what the labor situation is it seems likely that they will not make special rates. Some railroad men are of the opinion that it may not be possible to make harvest hand rates this season on account of the thirty days' requirement. If this were necessary the rates could not be put in early enough to be made available. The commission at Washington has adjourned for the summer and the question is raised as to whether special sanction can be had to put in the rates at short notice, or put in at all.

The commission has ruled that the thirty days' requirement be enforced for ordinary occasions, but under the "emergency" clause of the law special rates may be put in on a couple of days' notice. The definite call for harvest hands would seem to come under the "emergency" clause, so that if there is any one in Washington who has such authority, permission to put in the harvest hand rates may be granted.

FORCE JUMPERS TO RETURN GIRL

HOLY ROLLERS NARROWLY ESCAPE JAIL

PERJURY CHARGE IS LIKELY

Chief of Band of Religious Fanatics at Waukesha and Wife May Be Imprisoned

WAUKESHA, Wis., Aug. 1.—That Olga Lundell, the 17 year old Sac City, Ia., girl, was sent out of town Monday by the "Holy Jumpers" after her mother had come to the city after her, was proven at the habeas corpus proceedings before Court Commissioner Hemlock.

The members of the sect failed to over the writ to produce the girl in court and it was only through the grace of the attorneys for the girl's mother, vice president of the Metropolitan Church association, his wife Gertrude, and others were not sent to jail for contempt.

Mrs. Lundell, accompanied by an older daughter, Edith, came here Sunday after Olga, whom the mother claims was enticed away from her home by a band of "Holy Jumpers" in November, 1906. They saw the girl at the Fountain house Monday morning and she appeared willing to return home with them while talking with her mother and sister alone, but as soon as members of the sect appeared her demeanor changed, they apparently, having a weird influence over her. At this juncture the girl was hurried away to another portion of the building and the mother subsequently commenced habeas corpus proceedings for her release.

When the case was called before Court Commissioner Hemlock this morning the respondents made their return to the writ in which they alleged that the girl had come to their institution voluntarily, remained there voluntarily and had refused to return with her mother. They further alleged that the girl disappeared Monday and that they were unaware of her whereabouts and therefore unable to produce her in court.

At the habeas corpus hearing Edwin L. Harvey and his wife swore that they did not know of the whereabouts of the girl. Later Miss Martha Demerill, a member of the "Jumper" colony, and a niece of the Harveys, testified that Monday afternoon Miss Potter, manager of the "Burning Bush" the official "Jumper" publication, gave her $4 on Monday afternoon, that she gave the money to Olga Lundell and accompanied her to Oakland avenue at 3:30 where she was placed on an electric car bound for Milwaukee and subsequently went to Chicago.

STATE GAINS $9,000

TELEGRAPH TAX SHOWS INCREASE

Ad Valorem System Used Instead of License

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 1.—(Special.)—Nearly $9,000 more will come to the state treasury this year as the result of the application of the ad valorem system of taxation to telegraph companies, instead of the old license fee method. Heretofore, as in the case of the railroads, these companies paid a certain license based on gross earnings, which in 1906 amounted to a tax of $13,473.54 on the telegraph companies. This year with the application of the ad valorem system of taxation the companies will pay a tax of $22,426.61. This is the determination reached by the state board of assessments.

Following is the valuation fixed by the board upon the several companies and the tax which will be paid early in 1907:

Company	Value	Tax
Chic. & Milw.
Tel. Co.	23,000	$ 251.26
Chic. & Lake Superior Tel. Co.	110,000	1,204.55
North Amer. Tel. Co.	115,000	1,239.39
West'n Union Tel. Co.	1,800,000	19,710.90

Totals . . . $22,426.61
Under the old system of license fees on wire mileage according to the last clause of section 1216, statutes of 1898, the tax for all telegraph companies in the state in the year 1905 was $13,288.93 and in 1906, $13,473.54.

ARREST GANG OF RAILROAD THIEVES

FIVE ARE PLACED IN TOILS AT KENOSHA, WIS.

HAD RANSACKED THE CARS

All Men Charged With Robbery Were Employed on Trains—Capture Best in Years

KENOSHA, Wis., Aug. 1.—Chief of Police O'hare, Assistant Chief Newhouse, of Kenosha police force, and Detectives H. S. Greene, A. Goodman and W. J. Stewart of the Northwestern railway detective force, made a descent on Kenosha and as a result several men who have been widely known as employees of the railway company are under arrest charged with grand larceny. The men under arrest include:

Charles Ritt, 210 Ninth street, Milwaukee; a conductor in the employ of the company for more than fifteen years and widely known among railway men as "Jimmy Ritt."

Walter Lyons, brakeman; 341 Barclay street, Milwaukee; an employ of the company for ten years.

Adolph Moe, brakeman; 364 1/2 Florida street, Milwaukee; also a long-time employ of the road.

Peter Bub, brakeman, Milwaukee; refused to give his address.

Charles Hill, Kenosha, brakeman. Warrants have been issued for three other men who are members of freight crews on the road and before the police and detectives complete their work it is expected that no less than fifteen of the best known employees of the company will be in the Kenosha county jail.

It is the most sensational round up made in this neighborhood in a score of years and the detectives of the company declare that they have broken up a gang of thieves that have robbed the company and shippers of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise during the past year and a half.

Emmett O. Reed, a saloon keeper at Bassett's station was brought to the city to give evidence against the men as he had purchased a portion of the stolen property.

A student brakeman who was on the train when the members of the crew were arrested was taken into custody but he was discharged.

For months the Northwestern detectives have been baffled by the robberies of the merchandise cars between Milwaukee and Harvard, Ill. The trains have been watched at various places, but no trace of the robberies was secured. In the city of Milwaukee it is claimed that thousands of dollars worth of goods disappeared but Ritt and the members of his crew had been in the employ of the company for so many years that they were not suspected.

The men had a unique way of working. It is claimed that most of the merchandise stolen by them was disposed of to customers in the smaller towns along the right of way. They managed to steal everything possible from pairs of shoes to whiskey and groceries. Their mode of working was simple. When a train stopped at a place for water the members of the crew would unseat merchandise cars and take out such articles as they had a market for in the town, and it would be delivered to the purchasers while the engineer and fireman were busy taking water. It is possible that the purchasers did not know that the stuff was stolen, but the district attorney has been given a long list of names of men in Milwaukee and smaller cities who purchased the goods and wholesale arrests may be made for receiving stolen goods.

PLUNGES THROUGH DRAW, IS UNHURT

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Aug. 1.—The "Dip of Death," "Loop the Loop," "Gap the Gap" and other thrilling and adventurous acts faded into insignificance when compared to the high dive into the Menominee river from the sixteenth street viaduct at noon yesterday, and the subsequent heroic rescue from the murky waters.

Riding into an open draw on the viaduct, C. W. Buettner fell forty-five feet into the inky water below. His motorcycle was wrecked by a boat which passed over it immediately.

Apparently none the worse for his fall, Buettner walked to his home. After making a quick change of clothing he returned to the scene of the accident and recovered his motorcycle. He returned to work until 6 o'clock last night.

CROWDS AT ANNUAL HOME CELEBRATION

PRAIRIE DU SAC, Wis., Aug. 1.—Yesterday was the opening day for the big home coming at this place. Former citizens of Prairie du Sac constitute a large proportion of the guests who are here. Nearly every city of any note in Wisconsin has some representative here now, and many returned to the old home whose lives since childhood days have been spent in other states. A large crowd of people is expected tomorrow morning and will be most composed of old time citizens and their friends.

S.S.S. PURELY VEGETABLE

S. S. S. is recognized everywhere not only as the best of all blood purifiers and the greatest of all tonics, but the one medicine that can be taken with absolute safety by everyone. Young or old, those in robust health, or those whose systems are delicate and run-down, may use it with the same good results, and equally without fear of any unpleasant or injurious after effects. Next in importance to removing the cause of any disease is the condition in which the system is left after a course of medical treatment. Medicines containing mercury, potash or other strong mineral ingredients often do permanent injury by eating out the delicate lining and tissues of the stomach, producing chronic Dyspepsia, unfavorably affecting the bowels, and so deranging the system otherwise, that even if the original disease had been removed from the system it is left in such a weakened and deranged condition that the health is permanently impaired. S. S. S. enjoys the distinction of being the only blood medicine on the market that does not contain a mineral ingredient of some kind. It is made entirely of the healing, cleansing extracts and juices of roots, herbs and barks gathered directly from the forests and fields of nature, under our own supervision, and when they reach our laboratory contain all their original valuable tonic and blood purifying properties. We offer a reward of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains a particle of mineral in any form. Being made entirely from these vegetable ingredients S. S. S. is absolutely harmless to the system, and while curing disease adds health and strength to every part of the body. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism, Catarrh, Scrofula, Sores and Ulcers, Skin Diseases, Contagious Blood Poison, and all other blood troubles by removing the cause and supplying the circulation with health-giving and strength-producing qualities.

If you ever try this experiment you will always bless the day you woke up.

There's a reason why Grape Nuts food furnishes power to body and brain. It is made of selected parts of the field grains that furnish phosphate of potash in a natural state that can be assimilated by the human body. This joins with the albumen of food and forms the gray matter of the brain and nerve centres.

Feed skilfully and you can "do things."

The greatest brain workers eat Grape-Nuts.

Ask one or two, they'll tell you.

You meat eaters who are ailing in any sort of way should take the hint.

A prominent authority says.

"There is no doubt of the fact that meat-eating is not essential to human life, and that men can be well nourished without resorting to a flesh diet.

"I think the statement may be accepted without question that, as a rule, we eat too much, not only of meat, but of all forms of food. The question of limiting the diet is based primarily not on the principle of economy, but on the requirements of hygiene.

"At the early breakfasts which Americans are wont to indulge in, that is, a hearty meal before going to their daily work, the omission of meat is to be earnestly advised.

"It is well known that men who are nourished very extensively on certain cereals are capable of the hardest and most enduring labor."

You can depend on the energy from Grape-Nuts longer than from any meal of meat.

M. J. LACOURT IS GENERAL INSPECTOR

M. J. LaCourt, formerly foreman in the car department of the C. M. and St. Paul road at this place, has received official notice of his appointment as general inspector of the car and repair departments for the Milwaukee road. In all probability his temporary headquarters will be La Crosse.

Mr. LaCourt was taken completely by surprise with the appointment. He was called into the office of A. E. Manchester, superintendent of motive power for the road, last Tuesday, and had the duties of his new office fully explained to him.

Mr. LaCourt has been in the employ of the car department for a number of years, having started in as a car cleaner a long time ago and gradually working up to the position just given him.

A. X. Taylor, foreman of the car department in the Portage yards, has been assigned to take Mr. LaCourt's place.

The new general inspector will leave Thursday night for Chicago where he will inspect the departments in that city.

SEARCH FOR MONSTER

A party of twenty north side people was organized this morning to look for the sealion which escaped from the zoo at Minnehaha Falls and was seen Saturday evening in Black river by Mike Rathborne.

The party left the north side levee this morning with ropes, nets and such paraphernalia as would be necessary to capture the animal.

The party searched the sloughs near the river and in the vicinity in which the animal was seen, but were unsuccessful in their attempts to locate it.

HIS BIGGEST
FISH GOT AWAY

Theodore Como, an engineer on the Milwaukee, spent a day fishing yesterday and returned with two large pike and a four pound bass.

The largest one, however, was the "one that got away." According to the story told by Mr. Como to a number of his friends he got a bass "on" while he was standing up, and it was so large that in his efforts to land it the boat nearly capsized. He stooped down to catch the side of the boat to steady it, and while so doing his line became tangled in the oarlock, allowing the fish to get away. The fish was enormous but he could judge nothing as to its weight while it was in the water.

A Bold Step.

To overcome the well-grounded and reasonable objections of the more intelligent to the use of secret, medicinal compounds, Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., some time ago, decided to make a bold departure from the usual course pursued by the makers of put-up medicines for domestic use, and so has published broadcast and openly to the whole world, a full and complete list of all the ingredients entering into the composition of his widely celebrated medicines. Thus he has taken his numerous patrons and patients into his full confidence. Thus too he has removed his medicines from among secret nostrums of doubtful merits, and made them remedies of known composition.

By this bold step Dr. Pierce has shown that his formulas are of such excellence that he is not afraid to subject them to the strictest scrutiny.

Not only does the wrapper of every bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the famous medicine for weak stomach, biliousness and all catarrhal diseases, wherever located, have printed upon it, in plain English, a full and complete list of all the ingredients composing it, but a small book has been compiled from numerous standard medical works, of all the different schools of practice, containing very numerous extracts from the writings of leading practitioners of medicine, endorsing in the strongest possible terms, each and every ingredient contained in Dr. Pierce's medicines. One of these little books will be mailed free to any one sending address on postal card or by letter, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and requesting the same. From this little book it will be learned that Dr. Pierce's medicines contain no alcohol, narcotics, mineral agents or other poisonous or injurious ingredients, and that they are made from native medicinal roots of great value; also that some of the most valuable medicinal plants entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was known to the Indians as "Sagwa-weed." Our knowledge of the uses of not a few of our most valuable native medicinal plants was gained from the Indians. As made up by improved and exact processes, the "Favorite Prescription" is a most efficient remedy for regulating all the woman's functions, correcting displacements, as prolapsus, anteversion and retroversion, overcoming painful periods, toning up the nerves and bringing about a perfect state of health. Sold by all dealers in medicines.

CITY OFFICIALS ON ANNUAL PICNIC

LEAVE IN CARGILL'S BOAT FOR DRESDEN PARK

BALL GAME IS A FEATURE

City Hall Is Practically Deserted, and Officials Are Having "High Old Time"

Loaded down with good things to eat and plenty of other things to delight the heart of anyone out for a day's outing, W. W. Cargill's boat Giraldo, bearing the La Crosse city officials, left the landing at the foot of State street at 8 o'clock this morning headed for the park at Dresdenbach. A more happy crowd could never be looked upon. Today the annual picnic of the La Crosse executives is being held, and everyone of them is enjoying the occasion.

There are times when even an official can take off his dignified appearance and become one of the boys, and today is the day. The picnicers left in a happy mood, all eagerly anticipating a day of pleasure. To be sure that everyone would have plenty to eat and have it prepared in the right way, John Nekomm was engaged. No sooner had the boat left the landing than he had delicious sandwiches prepared and coffee cooking for the early risers.

The boat arrived at the grounds in good time, all of the picnicers taking ground with some package under his arm—of course, by package is meant something wrapped up. It was not long before the happy ones were in action, some starting a ball game and others seeking amusement along other lines. Joe Sieger, Comptroller Fries and Commissioner Falk, the base ball "bugs" of the city building, have had the idea for some time that they are base ball players. A game was framed up, and to see these heavyweights romping over the green in chase of a large indoor base ball was an attraction in itself. Even Mayor Anderson and Chief of Police Byrne were made to get into the mixup.

The first picnic of the city officials was a mysterious one and will long be remembered. For one solid day the officials disappeared from the city hall and no one knew where they were or what was going on. They had been called secretly together and just as secretly they left the city for a lark up the river. The return was also a secret and nothing could be learned of the outing. Of recent years the picnic has been made an annual event.

DON'T WED YOUNG SAYS CHILD BRIDE

CINCINNATI, O., Aug. 1.—Married at 14, sorry at 15, heart sick at 16 home with mother at 18—such, in her own words, is the state of Mrs. Catherine Smith, who looks like a schoolgirl of 16.

"My husband and I started to a picnic," said the juvenile-looking wife, "but we changed our minds and went to Newport, Ky., instead. There we were married."

"I was just 14. My husband was 22. Our honeymoon did not last long. My husband did not treat me well, and finally I returned to my mother's home."

"I read in the papers about the couple up in Wellston, O., who had celebrated their golden wedding. I read what they said and their recipe for being happy. They say marry young. I say so, too, but I call a marriage at 22 or 23 young for a girl, 25 to 28 or 30 young for a man."

CLAIMS STORY IS PERSECUTION

John Kreutz, the barber on South Third street, denies that the State Board of Barber Examiners visited his shop yesterday, and revoked his license. He stated today that the board had not been near his shop, and news articles in other papers were the result of several of the boss barbers using that means to injure his trade as he runs an open shop and charges only ten cents for shaves. Mr. Kreutz still holds his license and stated that he has the proof of several doctors in the city that his shop was in good sanitary condition.

NO CREDITORS MAKE APPEARANCE

At a meeting of the creditors, at which none appeared to present their claims against Charles Fritz, 1321 Market street, a bankrupt butcher, Attorney Arthur P. Parsons was appointed receiver by Referee in Bankruptcy C. L. Baldwin yesterday afternoon.

Fritz failed about one week ago, with liabilities of $1,963, and assets of $500.

2 MARRIAGE LICENSES

Two La Crosse couples secured licenses to wed yesterday afternoon. They were:

John Bicha, 922 Adams street, and Mary Freimark, 701 North Ninth street.

Julian Lienlokken and Clara Scholl, 1136 King street.

BEVERIDGE IS FOR IMPERIALISM NOW

UNCLE SAM WILL GOVERN ALL HER TROUBLESOME ISLANDS

ANSWER TO WILLIAM J. BRYAN

Indiana Senator Says Shilly-Shally Policy is un-American and That We Will Rule Provinces

Washington Bureau of the La Crosse Tribune.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1. "Pretty soon we will settle down to the actual permanent government, not only of Porto Rico and the Philippines, but of Cuba as well. A shilly-shally policy is un-American."

This is Senator Beveridge's answer to William J. Bryan's recent suggestion that the United States treat the Philippines as it has treated the Cubans, which is to set them up in the self-governing business as an independent nation. Mr. Beveridge commits himself to a policy of "imperialism" but not in the sense the democrats have used the form. The second utterance of Mr. Bryan and Senator Beveridge on the subject of imperialism appears in the August number of The Reader Magazine, which is serving as the medium of their novel joint debate on the political issues likely to figure in the next national campaign. Mr. Bryan holds to the theme of his first paper on imperialism entitled "Weakening the Republic." He goes so far as to say that disfranchised though the black man is in many southern states he has distinct advantages in the protection of government over the Filipino.

The Definition of Imperialism.

Senator Beveridge has consulted the Encyclopedia Americana and finds this definition of imperialism: "The national policy which tends toward the expansion of national dominion and national ideas over a geographical area wider than that of national boundaries. * * * In the United States the term 'imperialism' has been used in a more or less factitious sense. The term imperialism was employed as a political catch word in the presidential campaign of 1900 especially with regard to the purchase of the Philippines."

Senator Beveridge appears quite willing to defend imperialism according to this definition and he immediately combats Mr. Bryan's assertion that the Philippines are a source of weakness. If Russia had had the Philippines, Senator Beveridge points out that they would have been much stronger in the war with Japan, and that the difficulties of the latter would have been quadrupled. The senator asks why the Philippines are a source of weakness to the United States if England's vast colonial possessions are a source of strength to England. He then turns to a question of the highest interest in view of the plan of the administration to send the Atlantic battleship fleet to the Pacific and says:

Philippines Strong Strategic Point
"So we see that the Philippines are strategically one of our strongest points for military or naval operations in the far east. We must fortify them, of course, and we will do that just as soon as we quit playing politics with world questions. The expense of fortifications, which is the objection that penny wise statesmen make, is infinitesimal compared with the advantages which the Philippines, when fortified, give us throughout the Pacific and the orient. And remember that as human activities were greatest in the Atlantic and the Orient yesterday, so they will be greatest in the Pacific and the Orient tomorrow. This is the consensus of every scientist and statesman of every country."

Taking up his opponent's advocacy of the Cuban policy for the Filipino Senator Beveridge says that if the Philippines had been allowed to establish an independent government, the United States would have had to return and restore it not only once, as it has been obliged to do in Cuba, but probably several times. He declares it would have been much better for Cuba and for the United States had the American flag continued to fly over the island and the national policy had fulfilled "the dearest dream of Jefferson's life, which was the establishment of American government over Cuba." After referring to the present effort to give Cuba another chance Senator Beveridge says:

Will Stay Forever.
"We know in advance, of course, that they will again tear down the government that we build for them and that once more we will be forced to return. But when we do return the third time we will stay forever. If brave and impractical idealists, like Mr. Bryan, and cowardly, ignorant politicians, like many active persons in both parties, think that the American people are going to back and fill forever with this Cuban question, they little understand this determined, high purpose, practical nation."

Mr. Bryan compliments Senator Beveridge by saying that he has shown more courage than most republicans in meeting the issue of imperialism. Taking up Mr. Beveridge's previous paper on imperialism which was entitled "True Liberty Under Law," Mr. Bryan says: "Here we have the bald proposition that colonialism is to be a permanent thing; that we are to hold what we now have, take Cuba if she

LEAVES DINNER TO WED ANXIOUS PAIR

JUDGE BRINDLEY HURRIES TO MAKE THEM HAPPY

MELROSE COUPLE PHONE HIM

Magistrate Is Enjoying Dinner at Home of T. H. Spence, But Goes Home to Tie the Nuptial

That an anxious and bashful couple might be wedded one day ahead of the date set for the ceremony, Judge John Brindley, of the county court, hurriedly left a dinner party last night and performed the ceremony. Thereby the judge added one new circumstance to an already long list of achievements in the line of marriages.

While at the home of T. H. Spence, 920 King street, enjoying a dinner party with his family, the judge received a telephone message from the over anxious groom. The message said he desired to be married at once. Arrangements were made for the judge to leave for his home, the finance and fiancée to arrive there a few minutes later.

The arrangements worked perfectly, for no more had Judge Brindley reached his residence, 416 South Fourteenth street, than James M. Bolger, Melrose, Wis., and Fern M. Hamilton, a bashful, but pretty bride, from the same town, arrived at 10 o'clock. The ceremony was performed quickly.

"I was at the home of Mr. Spence, when the telephone rang and asked for me," said the judge today.

"We want to get married at once," said the party at the other end. "We came down to get married tomorrow, but we want to wed tonight."

"Alright, I'll be there," said the judge.

"All arrived at my home in due time, and the ceremony was performed with my family as witnesses. One of my children knew the groom too, and said he was a fine fellow."

"No, I didn't wear a dress suit, as I did once before," the judge answered the question.

"Mr. Bolger and his bride were prepared for the wedding. They had the marriage license, secured at Black River Falls more than five days ago, because the girl lived there. I was afraid I didn't have a blank form at home, but I found one. Anyway I couldn't stop a ceremony for that."

makes one more effort at self-government and falls, and later Santo Domingo, if, and he clearly intimates that the failure of self-government in both Cuba and Santo Domingo is to be not only expected, but even desired. . . . If Cuba becomes part of the American union, it ought to be with the understanding that they come in as citizens and not as subjects, and the same may be said of Santo Domingo or any other country that is added to ours. There is no objection to annexation when annexation is mutually desired and means the extension of our institutions, as well as our sovereignty."

Replying to Senator Beveridge's declaration that "the people of our blood and we ourselves have always been restless expansionists" and that "we must have more foreign trade," Mr. Bryan says:

"Senator Beveridge's reasons are not sufficient. Moral principles cannot be so easily ignored. It is true that history has given us many illustrious examples of nations which have extended their government over weaker nations, but history has also shown us the final overthrow of those conquering nations which substituted might for right and ignored the claims of justice—'For the God who reigned over Babylon

Is the God who is reigning yet."

"To be sure, it is called 'destiny' when a nation does wrong, but destiny has been defined as the 'dark apology for error.' It is the plea of the weak who, lacking the moral courage to withstand temptation seek to load their sins upon the Almighty. . . . In suggesting the expansion of our commerce as reason for imperialism he (Senator Beveridge) is putting forth the argument which really has been most potent in the making of imperialists. But the purchase of trade with human blood, the sacrifice of rights and principles of government in order to obtain a market—what is this but putting the dollars above the man? . . . Our own experience proves that there is a financial loss in an attempt to extend our trade by force. We have not only been willing to sell our birthright for a mess of pottage, but we have failed to get the pottage."

"The senator gives us but one side of the account; he magnifies our trade and ignores the cost to us. We are appropriating for the army and navy more than one hundred million dollars a year in excess of our army and navy appropriations ten years ago. Our increased expenditures far exceed our increased trade, and all of the people pay the expenses while a few get the benefit of the trade."

Miss Green, anticipated the deed upon missing her charge, and announced the suicide before it occurred. Coey, at Miss Green's request, sent $300 to pay expenses. Rumbaugh, unable to bear the strain of his sorrow and publicity, killed himself while the inquest was on. Coey, as shown by twenty letters read at the inquest, was deeply infatuated with the girl, but his proposals for keeping her with him never mentioned marriage, and this is presumed to be the basis of Miss Green's accusation that his treatment caused Miss Matthews to kill herself.

Letters Disclose Relations.
The relations between Coey and Miss Matthews are an open book after reading the letters of the former to her. The last letter she received follows:

"My Baby Girl: If you can come back to me the same as you left—you know what I mean—we will both be happy. I feel my need for you more than I thought I did. I will overlook the past. Live for me and I will do the same. I will, perhaps, be able to save you from the human vultures. You must give up this worldly life and regain your reputation. As ever, CHARLEY."

Many of the letters from Coey were received by Miss Matthews while she was in New York. He wrote her there as follows:

"Dear Laura: I want to tell you the truth. Laura, I cannot get along without you. I will live for you if you will for me. It will be me (underlined) and me alone. We want to make the ones we love happy. When will you come?"

"CHARLEY."

The letters showed, among other things, that Charley Coey provided the girl with money as liberally as he could afford. He always importuned her to "be good," and to remember that "worldly ways" must be "cut out," and that it must be "me, and only me." In one letter he simply said:

"Dear Girl: A line only to let you know I am alive and well. Laura, be a good girl. CHARLEY."

The following are among a score of similar brief notes, undated, all addressed to "Dear Laura" and signed "Charley."

"I can't possibly get over to see you. I send $50 by Gregg. If you want any more, let me know."

"I send $50 by boy. Be good."

"Just a line to let you know I am thinking of you. Inclosed find $5 I borrowed of you. Good-bye until I see you, darling."

"Inclosed find $5 and bracelet. Be a good girl."

Generous With Advice, Too.
One letter written at the Hotel Belmont, in New York, undated and evidently delivered to the girl in the same city, says:

"Dear Laura: Expect to be home Sunday. Be a good girl and remember that any one can be bad, even animals. Loyalty and truth and courage are what count in this world."

"CHARLEY."

A bit of poetry written by Laura Matthews to Coey was also read at the inquest. It runs:

"Here's to the man of rush and whirl,
Who rides around in an auto;
Here's to the girl who bridges him,
To ride around as he ought to."

Under the verse in Coey's handwriting is the line:

"If you bride me I'll stand hitched. Yours, CHARLEY."

Western Admirer.
Letters from a western admirer, of Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle and everywhere west of the Sierra Nevada, always signed "Paul," and purporting to be from the general manager for the Pacific coast of the greatest steamship line on that sea, were also read at the inquest.

ELKS CONVENTION GREAT GATHERING

After attending the national convention of the B. P. O. E. at Philadelphia, and making a trip through the east, Dr. R. T. Case returned home Tuesday evening. Dr. Case was the delegate from the La Crosse lodge of Elks to the convention.

"It was the greatest convention the Elks have ever had," says the doctor. "Never in my life have I ever seen such a gathering as I witnessed at the convention. Philadelphia was alive with people from every part of the country. Special trains came from everywhere bearing hundreds of Elks from the north, south, east and west."

The parade was a great feature of the convention, states Dr. Case. Thousands and thousands were in line, and although the day was a scorching they mostly stayed to the end, with the exception of those who dropped by the way side.

After the convention Dr. Case went east to New York, enjoyed the sights of the city and then visited other points of interest.

WEST SALEM WATER SUPPLY ABOUT DONE

The installation of the $25,000 reservoir water system at West Salem is progressing rapidly and in all probability will be completed by the first of October. A large reservoir with a capacity of 100,000 gallons of water will be sufficient to meet all the demands of the city. It will give good water supply for the homes and will insure ample protection in cases of fire. The water will be pumped from a well into the reservoir and will have pressure enough to force a stream through all the pipes in the city.

We speak of the babbling brook, but even the river can't keep its mouth shut.

Men Past Sixty in Danger

More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of prostate glands. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rockport, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for twenty years, although I am now 91 years old." A PRINTERY THAT DOES PRINTING RIGHT

THERE are five essentials which go to make up a first class printing and stationery shop, first, the equipment; second, the management, third, the mechanics; fourth, the attention to patrons, and fifth, the rates of output.

La Crosse has such an establishment, a first class, up-to-date, printing house which commands the attention of the general public, in the plant of A. A. Liesenfeld 209 Main street. The growth and development of this institution has been remarkable and the management well has the right to make the boast, "We are enabled to challenge the world in our line." The Liesenfeld work is well known to the community at large, known from the fact that the work turned out is of a superior quality; because of the fact that the makeup of the place contains those essentials above mentioned. Little by little adding to the equipment, smoothing out the flaws as they appear and ever paying attention to the patronage by turning out the work on time unless some unforeseen accident occurs, the A. A. Liesenfeld plant has developed and grown into an establishment the city can well feel proud of. At the present rate of development the company is destined to become one of the city's great institutions before long.

It was on September 25, 1905, that the Liesenfeld concern was established in La Crosse. Before coming to this city, however, Mr. Liesenfeld had charge of several of the leading plants of the country and gained a thorough and complete knowledge of the business. (He has even gone so far as to go into the woods and chop the trees for the making of paper.)

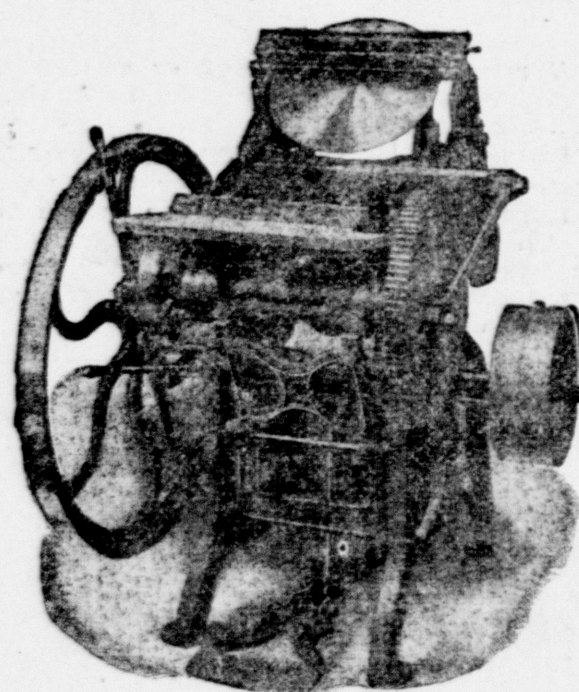

Within two years the plant and business has grown wonderfully, beyond the expectations of the management. It is now on a par with any, and can turn out the work just as complete and up-to-date as the best.

There is one thing which goes to show the prosperous and pleasing conditions existing at the Liesenfeld plant; the class of patronage and the great amount of business contracted. After 12 years' experience the company is in a position to confidently guarantee its printing in every respect. The large patronage enjoyed assures them that their efforts to produce printing that is satisfactory and profitable to users have been appreciated. Printing is a distinct art, and when a plant reaches that degree sustained by the Liesenfeld plant, it is certain to enjoy a business of lasting worth.

THE COMPOSING ROOM

A little insight to the workings of the establishment will not go amiss. First of all to be considered in a printing plant is the composing room. The composing room of the Liesenfeld plant is one of the best equipped departments of its kind in the Northwest. All of the latest faces of type, as well as up-to-date designs in borders and ornaments, have been purchased to make it possible to turn out the best and the most complete work, and to the satisfaction and desire of anyone. This department is under the direct management of Mr. J. C. Wolford, who has had more than 20 years' experience in some of the largest printing houses in the country. Mr. Wolford has under him a large corp of expert and competent compositors, men who have studied the work as an art and attained a knowledge of the business to an extent which makes them perfect in their work and invaluable to their employers. For all of the fact, however, that he has these men under him, Mr. Wolford personally oversees and studies every job that goes through his department. The attractiveness of the printing work comes from the composing room, and the work of the Liesenfeld plant testifies to the competency of the men employed there.

THE PRESS ROOM

Several job presses and two of the latest cylinder presses are to be found in the press room. In this department there is every facility for handling any amount of job work, as well as the largest piece of high grade printing. All can be done at the same time without any delay. This is a display of the equipment essential.

A practical pressman of wide and varied experience, Mr. J. J. Kotnour, has supervision of the press room. Under his management a crew of expert pressmen work, but the work is carefully looked after by Mr. Kotnour. The quality of the high-grade three and four color printing of the Liesenfeld plant, the kind of work where so many pressmen fail, attests to the general ability of the men at the plant.

A MONOTYPE MACHINE.

One of the new and modern additions to the plant is the typemaking machine now in use. In accord with the progress and growth of the establishment, the management during the past year purchased the latest style of Monotype machines. The feature of such a machine is that it makes it possible to turn out high grade work and give the public prompt service, in much less time than by the old method of hand setting.

The machine casts and makes its own type from raw metal, all at the same time. The worth of such an equipment is really remarkable. It increases the facilities for typesetting many fold, and enables the company to handle work of any magnitude. The same metal for the machine is used over and over again, but each time in the form of new type, hence each individual job is printed with new and perfect face type. Experienced workmen are required to handle these machines.

IDEAS WORKED UPON.

The following are a few ideas worked upon by the Liesenfeld company:

"We are all working for a common cause and that is greater La Crosse."

"The work that counts is that which supplies the business man with the means of reaching new people and forming new friends."

"Expert work in every department will make the work a credit to you and to us."

"Our printing stands for excellence, stands for quality, stands for good form."

"The work we do will benefit you in your business because it will have all the style and every evidence of taste it should contain."

"To catch the eye you must have printing that will accomplish just that purpose. We are careful that the eye-catching quality is in all we do."

HAVE FINE STOCK.

One thing not before mentioned in this article, and which is necessary for turning out the real flashy printing, is the kind of paper used. In the Liesenfeld plant will be found the highest grade of paper in stock to be found in any printing establishment of this size. The stock is complete. A full line of everything, from ordinary printing paper up to the finest grades of Bond and Linen stocks, is kept at the plant. A patron can get anything in this line he desires, the Liesenfeld plant never fails to produce just what is wanted.

A large power paper cutter is found in this department, used in trimming the enormous amount of stock required to print the vast number of jobs turned out each month. Even this department cannot be run without an experienced workman. One has charge of the stock department, and no little amount of care is given to the stock used as well as the trimming of every job. Mr. Liesenfeld goes on the theory that no job is too small to receive the best and most careful attention, and no job is too large to be handled satisfactorily.

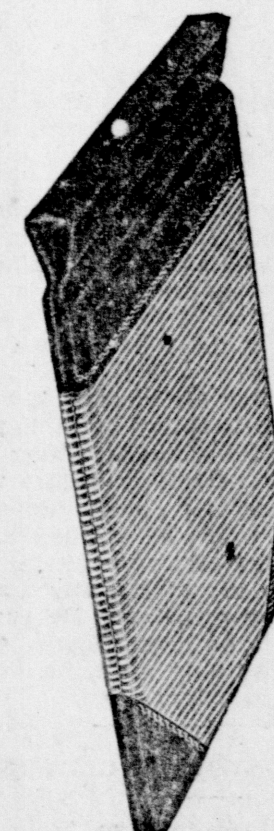

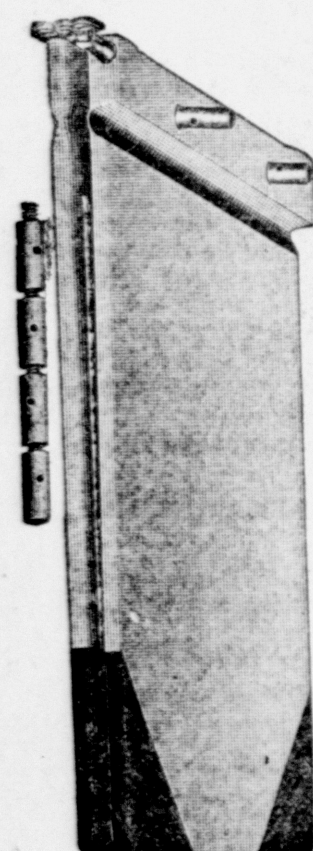

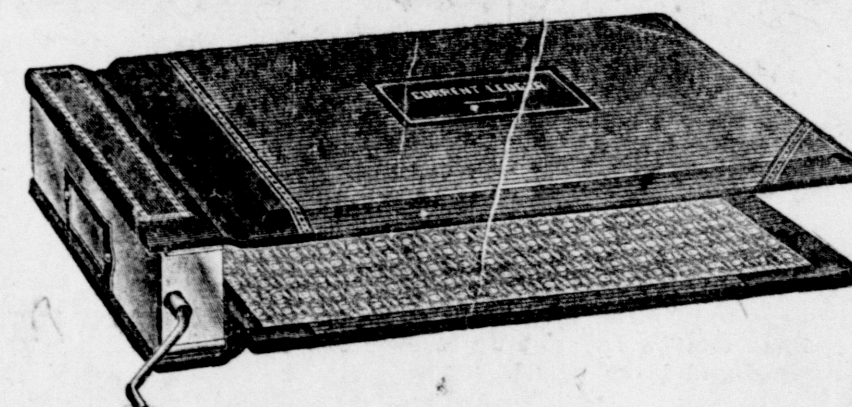

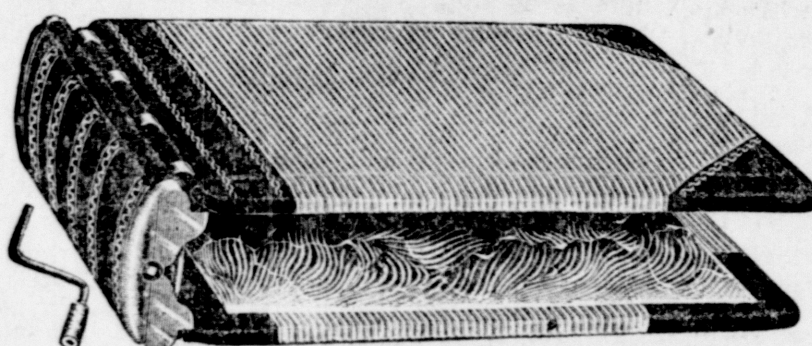

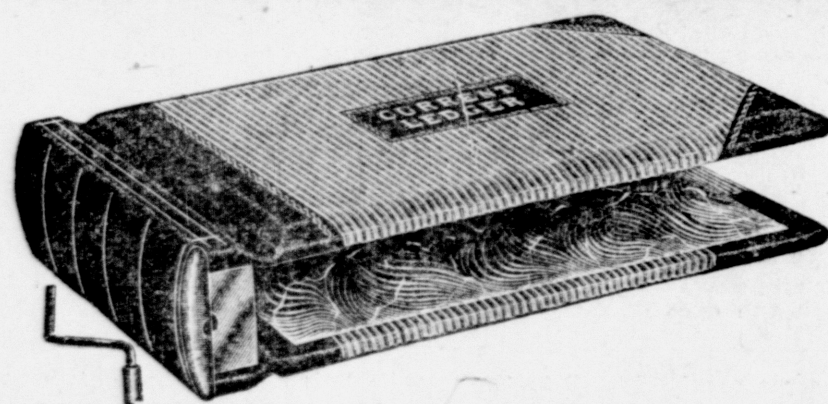

THE BINDING.

In picking up a book a person often speaks about the poor binding, remarking that it is loose or coming to pieces. Book binding must be given the closest attention, and must be treated with the modern machines used for the work. This department is kept in accord with the others before mentioned.

The latest of labor saving devices are used, such as wire stitchers, perforators, folding and punching machines, and dies of all shapes. Experts care for this end of the work. The plant prints and binds books, catalogs, etc., of every description in a manner to suit the most fastidious. With such a splendid equipment it is no wonder the company is prepared to give the public anything desired in this line.

Year after year books of all kinds, legal forms and the work requiring the closest attention, are turned out. One noticeable thing about the progress being made by the company, is the increase in business from year to year. The past year has been a banner year and Mr. Liesenfeld is looking forward to even a better 12 months in the present year.

KEEP THE FLOOR CLEAN

Cannot Make Good, Healthy Pork in Dirt and Filthy Surroundings.
—Some Feeding Hints.

THE hog responds as quickly to cleanliness and care as any farm animal. Not long since I was greatly impressed with the lack of sanitary conditions around the yards and houses of a man who had been growing hogs more or less successfully for ten years. His feeding troughs were foul with decayed food, the floors were damp and full of mudholes that good drainage would have prevented.

All fixtures in a hog house should be movable. It is advantageous to have the troughs where they may be washed or scalded out twice each week at least. Foul troughs are good breeding places for parasites that may be taken into the stomach and converted into worms. Damp floors may be overcome if the house is well aired and windows enough are in it to let the sunshine in on the floors. Do not stop the swill into the bedding or on the floors at feeding time. Shake the bedding up in each pen daily and toss out the dampest of it. Dry floors in winter add greatly to the warmth of the house. Never allow dust to accumulate on the partitions and in pens used for feed. It is always injurious to the hog's health.

If you are in the habit of feeding hogs corn scattered in the mud or dust of a dry yard, build a small feeding floor and use it. Go into any herd that is fed in the dust from thrown-down corn and you will hear much coughing and sneezing. This is due on all hogs and especially those kept for breeding purposes. Set your feeding floor up off the ground four to six inches and build it solidly of good timber. Around the whole edge nail a two by four.

This prevents lots of shelled or ear corn being pushed off into the dirt and dust. Sweep off the floor before feeding. Never overlook this.

A PRIZE DUROC JERSEY HOG.

The Durocs are red haired hogs and when mature weigh from 300 to 550 pounds. They can be brought up to even 500 pounds. They are prolific, good breeders and large boned.

A floor of this kind can be used for feeding alfalfa or clover as hay or steamed. The herd of Berkshires on the floor in the picture are eating chopped alfalfa that has been steamed somewhat and sparsely sprinkled with chopped corn and oats. The alfalfa is cut into four-inch lengths and soaked in a barrel or tank which has a jet of steam shooting upwards in it from the bottom. This does not boil the alfalfa, but just heats it enough to make coarse stems tender, and tender ones more toothsome. It is lifted from the tank on a fork and allowed to drain well when it is thrown upon the feeding floor. Pigs never leave much of it. For brood sows it makes an ideal feed, keeping them in good flesh, but not fat enough to hurt their breeding proclivities or injure their ease of farrowing. Throughout the entire west the use of scalded hay is becoming very common among the stockmen who are giving any amount of time to hog growing. Be sure to feed it to them on clean floors. Tossing it into dust only makes a muddy slush that is injurious.

THE NEW TOMATO CULTURE.

Prime the Vines to One Stalk and Train On Trellises.

By M. N. Edgerton.

The new method of tomato culture consists of confining the growth of the plants to a single stalk or vine, these being trained to stakes.

Pruning should begin as soon as branches begin to appear, growth being confined to the main stalk.

In this way, instead of dissipating a large share of its strength in an effort towards vine growth, the entire strength of the plant is centered in a few fruit clusters.

Under ordinary culture, that is, where plants are allowed to branch at will, the first cluster of blossoms are usually cast, and many of the buds appearing later fail to fructify.

With this new method nearly every bud produces fruit, each specimen being large and uniform in shape and coloring.

A dozen large tomatoes in a cluster is common and we have counted twenty to thirty tomatoes in exceptionally large clusters.

The main point of advantage possessed by this new method is earliness, largeness and uniformity, greater freedom from rot and better coloring of the fruit.

Grown for special markets, where fancy prices for fruit are to be had, the considerations specified make this new method of culture highly advantageous because of the enhanced value of the individual specimen of fruit.

With this method of culture it is especially desirable that the plants be started early and transplanted two or three times before moving to the field. By moving a square or ball of undisturbed earth with each plant, growth is scarcely checked.

We make it a practice to remove a large share of the leaves when transplanting in the beds and when moving to the field. This tends to preserve a balance between root and branch, largely preventing wilting of stalks and minimizing check in growth.

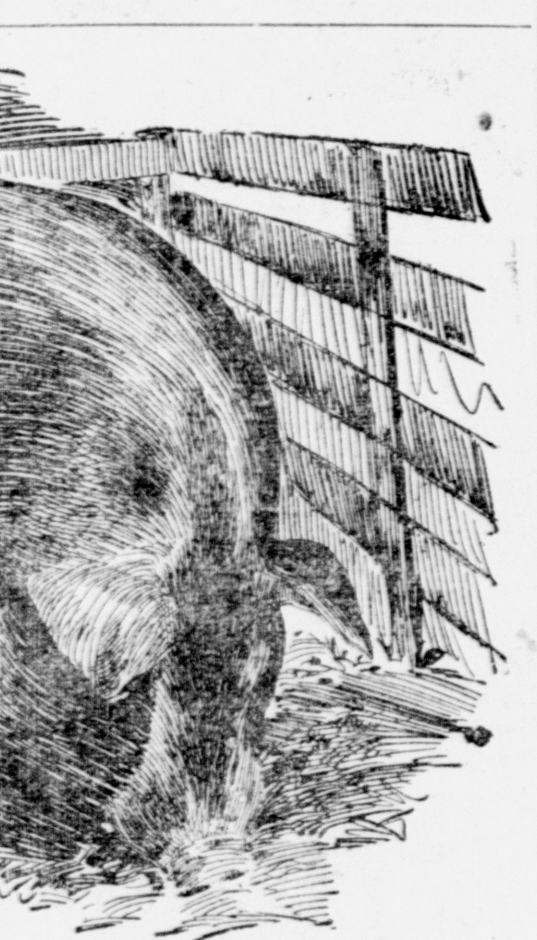

Plants moved to the field in this manner are but little checked in growth if the ground has been well fitted and soil moist.

We have moved strong and stocky plants that were two feet high with no resultant wilting of either leaves or stalks.

Such plants should be staked immediately, the plant being tied to the support below the first cluster of buds. Tie again, later on, below the second and third clusters. In tying, allowance must be made for the growth of the stalk. Three full clusters of fruit are enough for one plant. Branches must be removed as fast as they appear.

With this method, plants may be set as close as eighteen inches in the row. Rows should be four feet apart to allow plenty of room for horse cultivation.

Cultivation should be frequent, but shallow, as the roots of tomato plants seek the surface where the soil warms up under the influence of the sun's rays. Mere stirring of the surface as with a garden rake creates ideal soil conditions among tomato plants.

SAVING THE SWEET POTATO CROP.

Professor G. W. Carver, director of the Tuskegee Institute, of Alabama, has been experimenting for five years to discover the best way of saving sweet potatoes. His conclusions are that the belief that many people have that sweet potatoes will not keep unless planted, dug and banked during certain phases of the moon, is all wrong.

Immature potatoes are subject to all kinds of diseases which attack the tubers when stored. Professor Carver makes the following suggestions for caring for the crop:

Dig when both the air and ground are dry.

Remove the vines with a sharp hoe or vine cutter. Cure the vines and store them away. They make excellent hay.

Dig before the frost injures the vines to any extent.

Dig in the morning and allow the potatoes to lie out all day.

Gather in baskets or boxes holding not more than one bushel each.

Handle with great care, as they are easily bruised, and every injury lessens their keeping qualities.

"I always ship first the cattle that are not making gains," writes J. E. Deth of Seaton, Ill. There is a whole sermon on good management in that sentence.

It is not enough to read all the good things in the farm papers and the Station bulletins. We must do things as well as read about them. The farm is no place for dreamers.

Easy enough to figure out on paper a fortune raising cattle or hogs or sheep, but very often the actual results look as though viewed through the little end of a telescope.

Grindstone getting bad so it will not "cut"? That comes from standing out in the sun. Better get a new one and then keep it under cover. If you can do no better, you can make a cover of short pieces of board to slip over the stone when not in use, and don't forget to slip it over.

BIG MONEY IN SHEEP

No Small Farmer Can Afford to Cut
Them Out of His Yearly Operations.

(C. D. Lyon.)

SOME men were looking over a weedy pasture, and one of them said, "What shall I do with those weeds?" Quick as a flash his neighbor said, "Sell them in mutton at 6 cents per pound."

Every man knows his own business best and can best decide what kind of stock will pay him the greatest profit, but on most farms there is room for a small flock of sheep and at the end of the season the money the wool and lambs will bring will be just that much clear profit.

Going back to the first proposition, that of the weeds that infest our fields, it may be said that while growing sheep entirely upon weeds is not a plan to be advised, they will eat nearly every weed that grows upon a farm and will put on good, solid fat upon stuff that cattle and horses refuse.

The most tractable of all farm stock they can be managed with less trouble than other stock; all that is required is to restrain them being a wire net fence of the cheapest grade; even poultry netting will do.

The other day I was talking over the sheep question with some friends, and while we did not agree as to breeds, we were unanimously in favor of the breed of sheep that will bring a good heavy shipping lamb with the fleece a secondary consideration.

This is the very season to think of starting a flock, as a great many flock-masters sell off some ewes as soon as shearing time is over, and unless a man has plenty of means in these days he will have to start with such ewes as he can buy on the market, thoroughbreds being almost out of the question for the ordinary farmer.

The novice can easily get some reputable dealer who knows the kind of ewes wanted to procure him the needed number, and I advise against starting in to learn the sheep business with too large a flock, but to begin with a few animals.

Ten to twenty ewes will be enough on a 120 to 200-acre farm, unless it is decided to make sheep the leading farm stock, as the natural increase from these will soon build up a flock. Get as good ewes as you can procure, and they will probably be grades, which is all right, but remembering that the male is more than half the flock, never use any but a pure bred buck.

Ten good ewes can be had for about $50; the buck will cost $20 up to as much as you are willing to pay, and ten lambs next July, 1908, will bring you the cost of the whole, but this is not good business, and I will say more about flock management soon.

NOTES OF THE SHEEPFOLD.

Do not let any one deceive you by telling you that buck lambs will bring you as much money as wether lambs, for they will not do it.

Castrate all male lambs at eight days to two weeks of age, and any good operator will not lose one out of 100.

Dip all your sheep as soon as shearing is over. While you are at it, just dip the lambs too, as the ticks will leave the shorn ewes for the woolly lambs.

Fat lambs, yearlings, were worth just $1 per cwt. more March 15, 1907, than March 15, 1906. Does this look like a step backwards?

Just as long as a ewe "holds her teeth" it will pay to keep her for a breeder, as ewes breed lambs up to quite an advanced age.

That old ewe might have brought $2.50 last fall and the two lambs trotting at her side will bring $5 to $6 each in July.

An old ewe or two may die during the winter, but you can lose one out of three and still make it pay to keep them at $2 to $3 per head.

Inquirer: No, we do not think Angora goats will pay you as well as sheep, and we think that the sheep will pay double as much as goats.

We know very well that the Angora goat business is being boomed and have seen them by thousands in at least seven states.

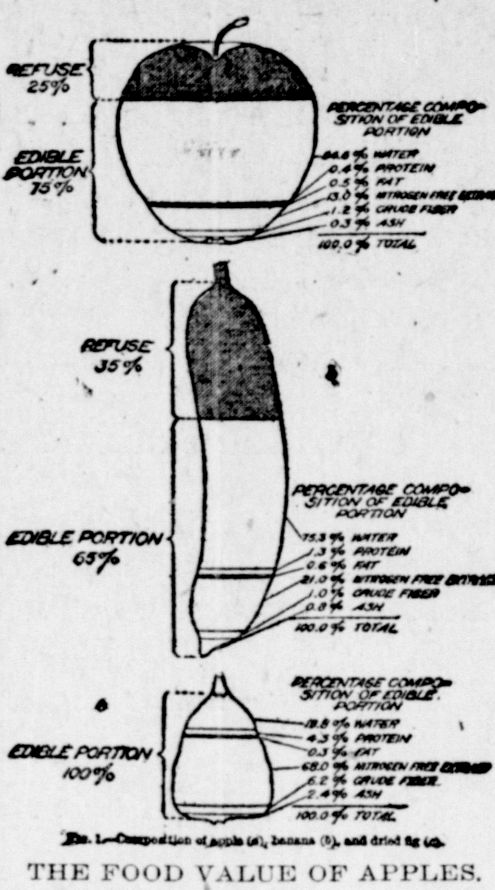

In no case excepting where the goats could be sold for breeders, were they paying as well as the poorest scrub sheep in Illinois.

The American Farm World is not advising anyone to hold for high prices, but it does look as if March lambs would sell high in August.

We invite short articles for the sheep page. Make them 100 to 150 words long and tell us how you are making your flock pay.

EFFECT OF THE NEW MEAT LAW.

One highly important result of the new laws regulating the meat-packing business may already be seen in the tendency of farmers throughout the country to keep more stock. "I am going to increase my herds a little," a leading farmer says; and the arguments he uses are these: More pork, beef and mutton will be eaten hereafter. Folks are satisfied now that the packers will send out only good, pure meat, and they will use it freely. Some one must grow the cattle to make this meat. We might as well all should drop everything else and put the eggs all into the meat-growing basket; if we did that there would be a big crash, but we can keep more stock and make it pay. And this is a sensible view to take of the matter. It will mean better times for farmers all over the country.

THE FOOD VALUE OF APPLES.

The accompanying chart shows in an interesting way the relative amount of edible matter in an apple as compared with the banana and the dried fig. Professor Davenport, of the Illinois College of Agriculture, says that unless farmers prepare their apples in better condition for market the banana will in time largely take its place because of its cleanliness.

HOW TO FIGHT ENEMIES.

For many years men have been working toward a greater degree of resistance against disease, with a view to lengthening their own lives; but it is only very recently that they have turned their attention to the production of grain and vegetables which will resist disease. Some remarkable results are being reached in this new field. We are learning to control rust in wheat, yellows in peaches and just now reports come from several of the New England states that a blight-proof potato is almost in sight. At the same time, from Colorado a farmer sends us word that he has succeeded in growing a melon that resists rust. Here is a splendid field for the up-to-date farmer. He will master the problem. He always masters whatever he undertakes.

The bees are provided with the best improved hives, the dove-tailed simplicity with Hoffman self-spacing frames, with full sheet comb foundations in brood combs. From some of our hives we secure as much as eighty pounds of surplus in one season, for which we have a ready sale at 12 1/2 cents per pound.

We sell vegetables from the time early lettuce and radishes come until cabbage and potatoes are gone in the following spring.

We do most of our cultivation before the seeds are planted. We first disc the ground until we have a bed of mellow earth three or four inches deep. This we turn under, then drag and pulverize down to the mellow earth we turned under. Drought seldom effects us. This mellow bed of earth is the best retainer of moisture I have ever found.

This is the secret of our success: A thorough preparation of the soil and shallow cultivation. By close attention to rotation and cultivation of crops we have our land so it will produce thirty bushels wheat and 100 bushels corn per acre.

Our corn land was broken up out of a poor pasture eight years ago, planted to corn and produced about thirty-five bushels per acre. It was then sown to wheat and then to red clover (tall or sapling clover).

The first crop was cut for hay and the second crop turned under in the fall and the land sown to rye for a winter cover crop and for green manure to be turned under the spring following.

When the rye was turned under the next spring, on the first day of April we planted Early Rose and Early Ohio potatoes. They were fine and we got over 325 bushels per acre on an average for the entire field.

After furnishing plenty of choice fruits, vegetables, eggs and poultry, milk, butter and honey for a family of six, the revenue from the forty acres runs from $700 to $800 per year, and will do much better in a few years, as the orchards are just coming into bearing.

A few acres in addition to raise any kind of garden crop and cultivated according to the above plan will give more value than many acres as generally cultivated.

TO TEACH THE REAL THING.

The state of New York took a forward step last winter when it appropriated $50,000 to establish a new school of agriculture in St. Lawrence county. This movement is entirely distinct from the work already being carried on at Cornell Institute.

The thought in the mind of the man who secured the passage of the bill providing the sum mentioned for this purpose is to establish still other schools in different parts of the state where the young men of New York may be educated as first-class farmers.

That such additional support may be given to the cause of agriculture, it stands the farmers of the Empire state, and any other state as well, to send their sons to farm colleges in such numbers that it shall be a fact known and read of all men that they appreciate the value of a liberal education in their profession of tilling the soil.

There is no danger that farmers will ever know too much about their business. Where they have failed in the past is in thinking that anybody can be a farmer. Only the best and most intelligent men succeed today on the farm.

The women of Montgomery county, Pennsylvania, hold regular monthly meetings to discuss scientific farming.

At the sale of G. W. Fink, of Maryville, Mo., thirty-five head of Aberdeen-Angus cattle brought $4,200, an average of $123 for each individual.

ONE LITTLE OLD FORTY

Good Management Makes a Good Profit on This Small Farm, Which Is Growing Richer.

(T. W. Griffin.)

ABOUT twenty acres of our forty-acre farm is in orchard. We have about an equal number of apple, peach, pear, quince, plum and cherry trees. One-third of the trees are aged or bearing, the rest are from two to seven years old.

In the young orchard we rotate with vegetables, cowpeas and red clover. The vegetables we sell from market wagon at handsome prices. We take only a No. 1 stuff to market and feed the culls to pigs, poultry or cows.

From the cowpeas and clover we get fertility stored up in the soil for future use in producing fruit and foliage.

A part of the young orchard is set to small fruits, raspberries, blackberries, strawberries, currants and gooseberries, one row of these between every two rows of trees.

We have three good cows, and aside from what we use at home we sell from $25 to $30 worth of milk and butter per month.

We have about 200 pure bred White Wyandottes that are fine layers, and sell readily for table fowls.

Honey, one of the purest of all sweets, we have in abundance. The bees not only gather nectar from the flowers, but are the fruit grower's best friend in helping to fertilize the fruits and vegetables.

We have a few choice pigs, raise our own meat and some for market. With fruit, poultry, cows, bees and vegetables, we have a combination the world cannot beat.

Our orchard is pruned, cultivated and sprayed regularly.

Our poultry houses are kept clean, well ventilated and white-washed in and out and we are not troubled with mites and diseases.

We grow our own feed for the cows, cowpeas, clover, sorghum and corn, and have bluegrass for pasture.

All manure is carefully saved and applied to the ground as made, generally to top dress clover or small grain.

The bees are provided with the best improved hives, the dove-tailed simplicity with Hoffman self-spacing frames, with full sheet comb foundations in brood combs. From some of our hives we secure as much as eighty pounds of surplus in one season, for which we have a ready sale at 12 1/2 cents per pound.

We sell vegetables from the time early lettuce and radishes come until cabbage and potatoes are gone in the following spring.

We do most of our cultivation before the seeds are planted. We first disc the ground until we have a bed of mellow earth three or four inches deep. This we turn under, then drag and pulverize down to the mellow earth we turned under. Drought seldom effects us. This mellow bed of earth is the best retainer of moisture I have ever found.

This is the secret of our success: A thorough preparation of the soil and shallow cultivation. By close attention to rotation and cultivation of crops we have our land so it will produce thirty bushels wheat and 100 bushels corn per acre.

Our corn land was broken up out of a poor pasture eight years ago, planted to corn and produced about thirty-five bushels per acre. It was then sown to wheat and then to red clover (tall or sapling clover).

The first crop was cut for hay and the second crop turned under in the fall and the land sown to rye for a winter cover crop and for green manure to be turned under the spring following.

When the rye was turned under the next spring, on the first day of April we planted Early Rose and Early Ohio potatoes. They were fine and we got over 325 bushels per acre on an average for the entire field.

After furnishing plenty of choice fruits, vegetables, eggs and poultry, milk, butter and honey for a family of six, the revenue from the forty acres runs from $700 to $800 per year, and will do much better in a few years, as the orchards are just coming into bearing.

A few acres in addition to raise any kind of garden crop and cultivated according to the above plan will give more value than many acres as generally cultivated.

When taking clothes off the line, fold smoothly the wash clothes, bath towels and hose and lay them away without ironing. They are just as good for use as though they were ironed, and the farmer's wife needs to save her time and strength whenever possible.

Keep a piece of beeswax wrapped in cloth and rub the hot irons over it occasionally. It keeps them smooth.

If you search an article badly when ironing, moisten it with lemon juice, rub in some salt and lay it in the sunshine. If it is only a slight scorch the sunshine alone will remove it.

Always iron embroidery on the wrong side so as to bring out the pattern.

When ironing lace-edged ruffles, run the iron along the lower edge of the lace while you pull gently on the ruffle with the other hand. This is the easiest way to pull the lace out to show the pattern.

If possible, sprinkle the clothes the night before ironing day. The dampness will be evenly distributed and they will iron easily next day.

Black goods will not look shiny and the white starch will not show on it if it is ironed on the wrong side.

To make an article very stiff, add a teaspoonful of powdered borax to the cold starch.

A tablespoonful of kerosene in starch will keep it from sticking.

COMPENSATION

Frank H. Sweet.

No man, however circumscribed, but has some amend given. For all the good to him denied Is counted him of heaven.

And even he whose years have been A sacrifice to pain, Has moments to which other men Can never hope to gain.

WHEN THE WELL RUNS DRY.

Year after year we go on cropping our farms, never seeming to think that there will surely come a time when the end will come and someone must suffer for it. The well will run dry. After that, we all know what comes.

The American Farm World pleads with the farmers of this country to think more carefully about the subject of keeping the fertility of their farming lands up to the best possible standard. You can scarcely touch an old farmer who will not tell you his farm is producing less of hay or corn or of grains than it once did. The statistics of the Agricultural Department at Washington show this is a national confession.

How shall this soil fertility be maintained? By feeding out more than the farm produces at home. By keeping more sheep and cattle. By remembering that the crop taken off calls for something put back. By keeping in mind the fact that the dollar of today ought not to be made at the expense of the dollar of tomorrow. It is hard work to gain back strength once lost. Better keep it while we have it.

A BUG WITH 100 LEGS.

The word centipede means 100 feet. The centipede looks like a dark colored worm and people say it has 100 feet. You can imagine how fast the little fellow must run.

You would win in every game of tag if you had a hundred legs, and what an ornament to a "nine" would a base ball boy be if he had a hundred legs.

By the way, people tell me there are millepedes—little creatures said to have 1,000 legs—but I'll not speak of them today.

In some countries people have to shake their clothes every morning before they put them on. They want to see if the centipedes have been trying on their clothes and not yet stepped out of them. Often will a person see a centipede fall to the floor as he shakes his clothing.

One of my friends awoke one morning and saw a centipede climbing up the curtains of her bed and looking at her. He only came to say "How do you do," yet he might have bitten her.—Alice May Douglas.

Being a roughage, it will limit the amount of concentrates eaten by the pig and will therefore not allow the pig to eat too great a quantity of digestible nutriment, which is a very important point with pigs under five or six months of age. When such pigs are put on a full feed of a ration of concentrated feeds they will eat too much.

Alfalfa makes excellent pasture for swine, provided it will not injure the pasture to have the alfalfa grazed by the swine. For best results the pasture should be sufficiently large so that the alfalfa is not cropped too closely,

NOT DANGEROUSLY UNANIMOUS.

(Milwaukee Sentinel.)

The esteemed Madison State Journal is apparently considerably worried to note that "during the past six months" The Sentinel and the Free Press have been, in matters of opinion, what it forcibly if inferentially described as "too d-d unanimous." The State Journal confesses to "some misgivings about these indications of an harmonious understanding," though why an even pretentious agreement of opinion between two republican dailies published in the same town should be regarded as a strange and suspicious phenomenon is not quite clear to us.

While we are occasionally gratified to find that by a happy coincidence views expressed by us on this or that public question harmonizes with the sentiments of the Free Press we have not as yet been struck by any unanimity so marked and persistent as to warrant the dark misgivings of the vigilant Madison censor. However, to relieve those misgivings for the present and out of kindly solicitude for the mental peace of the uneasy State Journal let us recall the otherwise unpleasant fact that within the current month our not always urbane local morning contemporary has at considerable length and with its pristine vituperative flu-

Murder Caused Sovalt Family to Flee—Crime and Marriages Confused Records

WINNIPEG, Man., Aug. 1.—John Fraser, collecting advertising accounts for a publishing house, proves to be the rightful claimant to the famous Lovatt estates in Scotland, although he has hidden his identity and himself from friends and relatives in this city.

In 1889 a dance was held in the farm house on the Lovatt estates, and Alex and Thomas Fraser, sons of Lord Lovatt, attended. Upon their entrance the piper played the visting air MacThomas, a tune distasteful to the Lovatts. Alex drew his dirk and wounded the piper. Thomas, the younger brother, urged Alex to fly, later publishing his death, and upon the death of Earl Lovatt, ascended to the title and valuable estates.

Alex fled to Wales, where he married and had a large family, the Winnipeg claimant being descended from this family. In 1885 the claimant had his case before the house of lords, the chancellor of the exchequer, stating that the title and estates rightfully belonged to the claimant, upon production of certain papers relating to the marriage and death of the fugitive.

The present claimant has since secured these papers and has arranged to have the case again before the house of lords, and claims nothing can keep the title and estates from him.

GIRL'S PARENTS START AN INVESTIGATION

SAYS WIFE IS UNDER AGE

Groom Represented Bride as Being 18, When She Was Two Years Younger

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 1.—Ernest H. Williams, an employee of the firm of Fairbanks, Morse & Co., and Jeanette N. Zengerle, a 16-year-old girl, who until a few months ago resided with her parents in this city, were the principals in an elopement which has just come to light, through the arrival of the girl's mother from Kansas City, for the purpose of verifying the marriage records and seeing how her daughter was situated.

Williams is 21 years old, and became acquainted with his youthful bride, when she lived in this city. At that time her father, Nicholas Zengerle, was the proprietor of a grocery store on West Third street.

It appears from the story of the mother that Williams and Miss Zengerle left Kansas City Sunday. They arrived here Monday, and the groom-to-be then repaired to the clerk of court's office and procured a marriage license. He told the clerk who issued the license that he was 21, and the girl was over 18. As the young lady did not come with Williams, the clerk took his word for it that she was of age.

The couple then went to the residence of the rector of Christ church, Rev. Mr. Platt, who is in charge of the parish. In the absence of the rector, Rev. Mr. Madeira, performed the ceremony.

Mrs. Zengerle followed the youthful elopers from Kansas City, and when she discovered her daughter, the latter told her that she was married.

He was divorced from his former wife about six months ago, giving her $26,500 alimony.

BUFFALO, Minn.—The 9-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Wrasch was accidentally shot in the head. He is still alive, but it is not thought that he can recover. His older brother was sitting beside the bed mending his overalls before going to work and had laid his 28-caliber revolver in the workbasket. The boy tried to pick it up, but it was entangled in some thread, and as he tried to lift it it was discharged. The ball entered the boy's right eye, near his nose, and lodged in the back of his skull.

WATERLOO, Ia.—An automobile street car line is proposed for this city and its promoters asked a franchise of the city council. The franchise as drawn provides the city may purchase the line at any time.

NORTHOME, Minn.—"Billy" Pohng and Frank Anderson, the two prisoners held here on charges of having fraudulently obtained a registered letter addressed to Johann Beduik from the local postoffice, by the aid of outside parties made their escape from the village jail last night and the supposition is that the prisoners are heading for the Canadian border.

RIPON FOUNDED IN NOVEMBER, 1850

RIPON, Wis., Aug. 1.—Some recently discovered documents in the Ripon college library prove that the commonly accepted date of the founding of the college is in error, and that the college was in reality founded on Nov. 23, 1830, instead of during the following year, as has been supposed. The old book of records, dating back to the days when the college was known as Brockway, was presented to the college several years ago, but was mislaid in the shifting of the library as the collection of books increased, and has just been rediscovered. The book tells of the first meeting of leading men of the Ripon of that early day, and of the decision to form a college. Many of the notables of that day were at this initial meeting and chosen as directors. David P. Hayes, elected president of the board, founded Ripon the year before the college was formed. Alvon E. Boyay, the clerk of the board, was later the founder of the republican party, in which capacity he is best known. Warren Chaseman, the leader of the famous Wisconsin Phalanx in the valley of Ceresco adjoining the then village of Ripon; John S. Horner was an early secretary of Michigan territory, later secretary of the Wisconsin territory. At this initial meeting the main portion of the present East College building was authorized, and was erected at a cost of less than $2,000. Later the building was enlarged.

CAN FOOL SOME OF THEM ALL THE TIME

(Free Press.)

Prof. F. W. Woll of the State Agricultural college is out with a bulletin on stock foods which farmers will do well to get and read.

The bulletin says that Wisconsin farmers are spending over $200,000 a year for stuff that is "supposed to be foods" and that cannot as a general rule, "be classed as medicines," but about all of which appear to be of little value.

"This amount of money," says the report, "is more than three times what it costs to run the state agricultural college and the experiment station for a year, and is more than all the buildings belonging to our agricultural college have cost the state."

You may have observed that some men make a specialty of melancholy observations.

SPOTLIGHTS

"A PRINCE OF SWEDEN."

New, fresh and bright as a copper cent fresh from the mint, now comes that favorite Swedish dialect comedy drama, "A Prince of Sweden." Comedy dramas seem to be the attractions that draw the crowds now-a-days and so far this season "A Prince of Sweden" decidedly holds its own. And justly so, for the noted theatrical critics have been a unit in the declaration that the pretty piece takes, ranks side by side with Ole Olson and Von Yonson.

From its first presentation to the public, the play has proven highly successful and from the time it left its birthplace, its career has been one continued march of triumph.

"A Prince of Sweden" always in the hands of a company of artists has undergone several changes, all of them for the better, and proceeds smoothly and swiftly and is destined for a long and prosperous career because it is one of the few plays written in America that will always be interesting. And the tale that the Prince of Sweden tells is amusing and interesting enough for anybody's taste. Carl Carlson the peerless impersonator, is to be seen in the leading part while the balance of the company comprise a list of talented artists. To further enliven and brighten the evening's performance, the management has added at a great expense seven or eight high-class specialties which are alone said to be doubly worth the modest price of admission to be charged for the coming engagement here. This company carries a superb band and will give a street parade and band concert in front of the theatre at 7:30 p. m. on Saturday. At the theatre Sunday, Aug. 4, afternoon and night.
